INTRODUCTION

This book, the result of twenty years research during leisure time, may be of some assistance to those of other branches of the Courtright family who are not familiar with its history, but it is by no means complete, nor free from errors.

It is more especially designed to preserve a genealogy of Benjamin Cortright, through his sons Cornelius, Henry and John, who came from Minisink district in Northampton County soon after the Revolution and settled in Plains, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, in the Wyoming Valley, leaving descendants now widely dispersed. It also includes a partial genealogy of the descendants of Elisha Cortright, a cousin, who came to the Valley at an early date.

Records of the Harlem branch of the family herein contained have been taken literally from the accurate and well written "History of Harlem" by James Riker, and from numerous other authorities, while all baptisms and early marriages will be found in the published records of the Reformed Dutch churches of New Amsterdam, Kingston, Rochester, Sleepy Hollow, Wawarsing, Smithfield, Machackemeck, (Deerpark) Walpeck and other places.

The sketches of the Abbott and Gore families are largely quotations from Oscar J. Harvey's History of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., while much information has been gleaned from the publications of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, the Pennsylvania Archives, and many other sources.

There are Cortrights among the early generations of whom nothing more will ever be known than name and date of baptism, some of whom died young, and others who married and may be traced through generations now unrecorded.

Many children were born, of whom there is no record, owing to frequent migration of young couples to new settlements where there was no established church, and in many instances church records have been lost or destroyed, containing information of great value.

Duplication of given names was frequent among our Dutch ancestors, making it difficult to ascertain with certainty who was referred to in marriage records, but these have been determined by comparisons of ages, locations, names of children, etc., so far as possible, although it will be surprising if no errors are discovered. Information of Cortright families unrecorded here, correction of errors and supplied omissions will be gratefully received and recorded in a future edition. The arrangement of this book is so simple as to require no explanation, while the abbreviations are those generally used, such as b., for born, bap., baptized, m., married; d., died; j. m., single man; j. d., single woman, etc.

Our Cortright ancestors were mostly farmers, living simple lives, industrious and honest, of strong religious convictions, sharing with other pioneers the dangers and hardships incident to the settlement of a new country, and but very few attained distinction.

My warmest feelings of gratitude and sincere thanks are tendered to those who have so kindly aided me by supplying the necessary data, thus making this work possible, and not in a single instance has it been refused or my inquiries ignored.

Your compiler is amply compensated in the thought that this record may afford pleasure to the Cortright descendants by giving them reliable information of their ancestors, heretofore not available to many, and foster an honest pride in an honorable American ancestry of two hundred and sixty years.

Your Kinsman,

JOHN HOWARD ABBOTT,

THE FAMILY NAME

Family names were the exception and not the rule among our early Dutch colonists. The mass of people in the Fatherland used only a patronymic, formed by adding to the child's Christian name that of the father, with the affix, sen or son, by which originated all names so terminating, as for example, Hendrick Jansen (Hendrick, son of Jan), and the like.

In correct writing, the affix was often shortened to se, or z, and always in the case of females, to s. This custom necessarily produced among the male descendants of the same progenitor a diversity of surnames, if they may, for convenience, be so called.

Thus, Cornelius and Hendrick, being sons of Jan Bastiaensen, would be known as Cornelius Jansen and Hendrick Jansen, while their children would be named respectively Cornelissen and Hendricksen, and these names in turn each afford other varieties in the next generation.

On the other hand, the use of the patronymic caused a frequent recurrence of the same name where no family connection whatever existed.

The inconvenience thus arising, and particularly the liability of confounding persons of a similar name, was partially obviated by the practice in vogue in Fatherland, kept up by the colonists, both in familiar speech and in formal writings, of distinguishing persons by their birthplace, as for example, Hendrick Jansen Van Kortryk, that is, Hendrick Jansen, from or of Kortryk.

In the Kingston and other church records, our ancestors were called Jansen and Hendricksen, until 1703, when the name was recorded Kortright, with many ways of spelling it.

This valued link connecting the colonist with his former home, was in many cases directly to his interest to preserve.

In Holland, as with us, the name of the place thus often became the permanent family name, of which many instances abound, but it often resulted that two brothers, born in different places, and from these deriving their respective surnames, gave rise to as many families, whose common origin, after a few generations, none would suspect.

In many cases the "Van" has been dropped, and often the name so changed as to disguise its origin, as those of Oblinus and Kortright.

The first of these, derived from Houplines, and after emigration, probably in conformity to English utterance, became Oblinus, and by usage before mentioned, written Van Oblinus, and at first, the Kortrights also used the Van. The Kortright name appears in the ancient land and church records in various forms, as Van Kortryk, Kortregt, Kortrecht, Kortrecht, etc., and frequently beginning with the letter C, and spelled phonetically by the ministers to whom children were brought for baptism, or young couples presenting themselves for marriage. There were other variants, such as Curtright, and rarely Cartright, but soon after the Revolution, the name was written Cortright by most of the descendants, although now generally written Courtright.

Very few names among us at present, whether of Dutch, French or other descent, preserve their original form, a result to be deprecated, though a return to the early orthography may now neither be practicable nor desirable.

THE COURTRIGHT FAMILY

Kortrijk

Kortryk (in French, Courtrai) was the home of the earliest ancestor of the Courtright (Kortright) family of which there is any knowledge, so a brief history of the town may be of interest to those who desire information regarding the genealogy of this family.

Kortryk is situated twenty-six miles Southwest of Ghent, on the river Lys, in the Province of West Flanders, Belgium, and is celebrated for its fine linen, while its lace factories are also important, employing many of its inhabitants. In 1910 it had a population of about 36,000, but considerable as is the prosperity of modern Courtrai, it is but a shadow of what it was in the middle ages during the halcyon period of the Flemish communes, as then it had a population of over 200,000.

Many interesting structures of Courtrai's former grandeur remain; the Pont de Broel, with its towers at either end of the bridge, is as characteristic and complete as any monument of ancient Flanders that has come down to modern times.

Among the remarkable public buildings is the Hotel de Ville, or Town Hall, a Gothic edifice, built in 1526, containing two singularly carved chimney pieces, representing the Virtues and Vices, and events in the early history of the town, one of them decorated with the coats of arms of the allied towns of Ghent and Bruges, the standard bearers of the Knights of Kortryk, and various statues, including those of Arch Duke Albert and his wife. The church of St. Martin dates from the fifteenth century, but the most important building in Courtrai is the church of Notre Dame, begun by Count Baldwin IX in 1191, and completed in 1211, in the chapel of which is hung one of Van Dyck's masterpieces, "The Erection of the Cross," and in this church are several other celebrated paintings.

The Flemish language differs but slightly from the Dutch, in the middle ages forming but one tongue, and even at the present time the Flemish spoken language differs no more from the Dutch than some German dialects do from each other.

The country called Belgium at the present time, originally peopled by a race of Celtic origin and subsequently overrun by Teutonic invaders, was conquered by Caesar, at which time the town existed and under the Romans was called Cortoriacum, afterwards changed to Curtricum. The Salic Franks gained possession in the fifth century, and in the ninth, the country formed part of the empire of Charlemagne.

Kortryk was destroyed by the Normans, but rebuilt by Baldwin III, of Flanders, in the tenth century, who endowed it with market rights and laid the foundation of its industrial importance by inviting the settlement of foreign weavers.

Flanders carried on a long continuous struggle against France, the result of which was the establishment of its complete independence.

On the 11th of July, 1302, below the walls of Kortryk, was fought the famous battle of the Spurs, when the French army of 47,000 men, under the Count of Artois, was defeated by the army of the allied burghers of Bruges, Ypres and Kortryk, consisting of 20,000 men, under Count John of Nabor and Duke William of Juliers.

The French army was put to flight, while upward of 1,200 knights and several thousand soldiers fell, and afterward the victors collected over seven hundred golden spurs, an appendage worn by the French knights alone, which they hung up as a trophy in the church of the convent of Groenangen, now destroyed. A small chapel outside the Ghent gate, erected in 1831, marks the center of the battlefield.

On the extinction of the male line of the Counts of Flanders in 1385, it became annexed to Burgundy by the marriage of Philip the Bold with a daughter of the Flemish princely race. The splendor-loving Philip the Bold employed artists of every kind, while the name of his grand-son, Philip the Good, 1419-1467, is inseparably connected with the first bloom of Flemish painting.

In 1477 the Netherlands came into the possession of the House of Hapsburg, Charles V., grand-son of Maximilian, succeeding to the whole of these provinces, which on his abdication in 1555, came under the sway of his son, Philip II, and thenceforward the Netherlands were subject to Spanish supremacy.

About this time the new doctrines of the Reformed religion began to spread among the people, many of them embracing its teachings, more especially the thinking and sober classes, who had discarded their old beliefs and superstitions, and who were known as Walloons.

The religious reform was rife not only in the Netherlands, but in England, France and Germany as well, and met with deadly opposition from the ruling powers, civil and ecclesiastical, being subjected to every cruel means for its suppression that these could exert, among which was the infamous system of espionage and torture known as the Spanish Inquisition.

In 1559 the burdensome presence of the Spanish troops and other grievances led to numerous tumults, to suppress which the King dispatched the Duke of Alva to the Netherlands with an army of 20,000 men.

The persecutions under the royal governor, the bloody Duke of Alva, had become so insufferable, that in 1568 the provinces broke out in revolt, and took up arms under the noble patriot, William of Orange, but at first without success.

Brighter were the prospects when, eight years later, the Walloons again struck for their liberties, for unable longer to bear the outrages heaped upon them, they appealed to arms, joining the Hollanders and French Huguenots in the effort to drive the Spaniards from the country and enjoy religious toleration.

As a sequence, Holland, Zeeland, Gelderland and other provinces achieved their independence in 1579, after a long and obstinate struggle, but the remaining Netherlands, part unwilling, part unable to shake off their fetters, relapsed into a more servile bondage to Spain and the Papacy, and the Protestant Walloons were allowed two years in which either to return to the bosom of the church or leave the country, so shut up in this alternative, thousands sought safety in flight.

The breaking out of war between France and Spain in 1635 also caused a considerable influx of Protestant refugees to England and Holland, and resulted in the conquest of parts of Flanders and other provinces and their annexation to France.

No class of Gallic blood was more remarkable than the Walloons, mainly included within France and Belgium. Theirs was a belt of country extending eastward from the river Lys, beyond both the Scheldt and Meuse, and embracing French or Walloon Flanders, most of Artois, the Cambresis, Hainault, Namur, Southern Brabant, and parts of Liege and Sedan, a fruitful region, and in the sixteenth century an independent Protestant state, attracting many of the persecuted Walloons during the religious troubles of that period.

The northern limits of the Walloon country would have been nearly defined by a line drawn from Liege, on the Meuse, to Calais; on the south it was bounded by Picardy, Champagne and Lorraine, provinces which at that time composed the French frontier.

The Walloon emigrations of the sixteenth century went largely by way of the Scheldt, the Meuse, and their affluents, to Holland.

Skirting interiorwise the districts which were the homes of the refugees, the Meuse flowed northerly, then swept westward around Brabant, reaching the sea by several outlets between the insular parts of South Holland. It is unsurpassed for bold and grand scenery, which beginning near Sedan, is heightened to the sublime as it reaches Namur where the Sambre enters it.

Towering walls of rock, now bare, now clad in foliage, rise on either side, while here and there huge cleft or ravine opens to view some far-reaching and romantic vale or dark unfathomed dell—fitting retreat for those stern feudal chiefs, who once took tribute of each passing vessel.

Weird stories are woven around its fantastic forms and crumbling castles of an early period, but stranger tales were those of the sixteenth century—of crafts richly freighted, but not with merchandise, stealing down its favoring current, bearing the victims of persecution, Protestant Walloons from the adjacent districts, to a land of safety.

The Walloons were a hardy, long lived race, tall, stout and muscular, of strong intellects, manly bearings, a sagacious, practical and laborious people, noted for the plainness of their tastes, manners and dress. These several traits were clearly traceable to their ancestors, the old Belgae, their descent from whom was also unmistakable in their coolness and pertinacity, in contrast to those of Celtic blood.

It was these qualities, combined with a natural love of arms, and the courage inherited from their ancestors, whom Caesar describes as the bravest of the Gauls, that made the Walloons such famous soldiers. Ever tenacious of their rights, and thus excessively litigant, they were yet hospitable and social, possessing much of the French vivacity. In domestic life they lacked no element of solid, home-spun comfort; the plain substantial domicile, roofed with tile or thatch, a bare floor, but a genial hearth-stone, with ample pile of blazing wood; the oaken board, set with brown ware or pewter, with goodly supply of simple, wholesome food—this satisfied the Walloon in the line of living, while song or instrumental music, of which they were very fond, enlivened the social hour.

Says Davies, the historian of Holland, "Nor was it more in the numbers than in the sort of population that Holland found her advantage. The fugitives were not criminals escaped from justice, speculators lured by the hope of plunder, nor idlers coming thither to enjoy the luxuries which their own country did not afford; they were generally men persecuted on account of their love of civic liberty, or their devotion to their religious tenets. Had they been content to sacrifice the one or the other to their present ease and interest they had remained unmolested where they were. It was by their activity, integrity and resolution that they rendered themselves obnoxious to the tyrannical and bigoted governments which drove them from their native land, and these virtues they carried with them to their adopted country, peopling it, not with vagabonds or indolent voluptuaries, but with brave intelligent and useful citizens."

Amsterdam, as the great commercial mart of Holland, and the seat of the Dutch West India Company, had become the great point of embarkation for colonists going to New Netherland. They came from all parts of the country, not only the native Dutch, but fugitives from France and the Netherlands, and also refugees from the German and Scandinavian countries, seeking a home in the United Provinces.

Kortryk was a Flemish town yet farther down the Lys, which within the previous century had witnessed cruel persecutions, and during the existing war (how great its calamities) had changed hands four times in five years. But one of its families had escaped these last troubles by leaving some years before; we refer to the ancestors of the Kortright (or Courtright) family, in its day, one of the most wealthy in landed possessions in Harlem, now part of New York City.

The large emigration to New Netherland from the exposed borders nearest the Spanish possessions, and especially the insular district having on the south the river Waal, and on the north the Rhine and Leck, furnished Harlem with several substantial families.

Central of the district mentioned, upon the small river Linge, which empties into the Waal, stood the city of Leerdam, giving name to a country in which it was situated—a level, grazing country, otherwise called the Prince's land, because inherited by a son of William of Orange. To Leerdam had retired the family of Sebastian, or Bastian Van Kortryk, about all we know of this Kortright progenitor with his royal Spanish name. Two sons of Bastian, of whom we must speak, Jan and Michiel, were born at Leerdam; but the first married and settled some further up the Linge, at a busy little village within sight of Wolfswaert Castle, as also of the ruined abbey of Marienwaert and called Beest, its bailiwick of the same name joining westerly to the Prince's land, but within the Gelderland border.

Michiel, or as often called, 'Chiel Kortright, the other son of Bastian, had also married and been living in the Prince's land, near Schoonrewoerd, a pretty village two miles northerly from Leerdam.

The spirit of emigration reaching this locality, many of its people began to pack up and leave for New Netherland, in which they had a safe precedent in no less a personage than the village pedagogue—much revered was he and looked up to in those days,—good Master Gideon Schaets, who had gone thither in 1652, to preach the Gospel and fill the office of schoolmaster for young and old.

Every bit of news wafted home from time to time in friendly letters served to quicken interest in the new country which had caused so many vacant tenements and broken families about Beest and Schoonrewoerd.

Yet 'Chiel Bastiaensen tarried some years at Schoonrewoerd, till blessed with three or four children, when he, and his elder brother, Jan Bastiaensen, whose three sons, born at Beest, his humble home in a bend of the Linge, were fast approaching manhood, yielded to the flattering offers held out by the colonists, and agreed to leave for that distant land.

Proceeding to Amsterdam, they all embarked April 16th, 1663, in the ship Bonte-koe (Brindle or Spotted Cow), Jan Bergen, Master, in which ship there also sailed several French refugees from Mannheim, in the Palatinate. Men, women and children, there were ninety odd passengers, the French composing a third. Each adult was charged 39 florins, children under ten, half price, and it cost Jan Bastiaensen (Kortright) for himself, wife and family, 204 florins, 10 stivers.

The Bastiaensen brothers, upon their arrival, first went to Stuyvesant's Bowery, though they soon after came to Harlem.

Jan Bastiaensen, (born 1618) as we have seen, came to this country from the County of Leerdam, or the Prince's land, in South Holland, in 1663, accompanied by his brother, Michiel Bastiaensen, (born 1620), both of whom afterwards lived in Harlem.

Jan was the "Korttryck" who owned a Bouwery on Staten Island in 1674. (N. Y. Col. Mss., XXIII, 403). He spent part of his time at Harlem, but is last mentioned there Jan. 8th, 1677, when he is witness to a power of attorney, given by his old Schoonrewoerd friend, Jan Louwe Bogert.

His children were Cornelius, born 1645, Hendrick, 1648, Laurens, 1651, and Belitie, 1659, who was, as were the others, "uit Holland" and who married, December 8th, 1678, Jacob Jansen Decker, of Esopus, whither her brother Hendrick had gone to live.

Michiel Bastiaensen, who came in 1663, with his wife and children, the first four born in the town of Schoonrewoerd, in Gelderland, Holland, lived several years at Harlem, but on May 1st, 1669, leased a farm from John Archer, at Fordham, for five years, and on Jan. 1st, 1675, with his son-in-law, Hendrick Kiensen, hired from the widow Tourneur her farm upon Jochim Pieters and Van Keulens Hook, with house, barn, orchard, meadows, stock and tools, for three years from May 1st, ensuing.

On Oct. 26th, 1677, they leased 74 acres of land at Spuyten Duyvel from Jan Dyckman and Jan Nagel, for a term of twelve years, agreeing to pay each a hen for the first seven years, 150 guilders for the next three years, and for the last two years, 200 guilders.

This was the first successful effort to make improvements in that section of Manhattan Island, on which there was not another white man's hearthstone north of Harlem village.

In October 1673, he was elected a magistrate at Fordham, and was on the roll of the Night Watch at Harlem, as well as being identified with the Dutch church there.

His children were Reyer, born 1653; Metje, 1655, married Hendrick Kiersen; Annetie, 1658, married John Odell (ancestor of the Fordham Odells); Bastiaen, 1662; and Aefie, 1665, born in New York, who married Jacques Tourneur.

HARLEM

The pioneer settlers of Harlem were Henry and Isaac De Forest, French Huguenots, who came from Leyden, Holland, in 1636, choosing for their home the rich flat lands called Muscoota, about eight miles north of New Amsterdam, on Manhattan Island, where Henry obtained from director Van Twiller a grant of about 200 acres.

Here they built a farm house, in the rural Dutch style, forty two feet long and eighteen feet wide, surrounded by a high close fence of heavy round pickets, as a protection from the Indians, who eyed with ill-disguised suspicion this inroad upon their ancient hunting grounds.

The following spring they were cheered by the arrival of Dr. Johannes La Montagne, with his family, he having married Rachel, a sister of the De Forests.

Soon after, other settlers came, but the founders of Harlem were neither exclusively nor mainly Hollanders, as has been the common opinion. The community was made up mainly and in about even proportions of Hollanders and French Huguenots, while from the fir-clad hills of old Scandinavia, came sturdy Danes, Norwegians and Swedes, in faith Lutherans, inured to the soil, few in numbers, yet including several of undoubted worth and attainments.

Other exceptions there were, while all were men of probity, who had sacrificed much for liberty and the Reformed religion, and were equal to those of their times in intelligence, education and enterprise.

Highly industrious, they scorned, even in poverty, any dependence upon the charitable, while they could practice an honest trade or handicraft, such as each invariably possessed.

Their record, though not faultless, sustains this general good character; tried men, used to conquering difficulties, undaunted by the perils incident to a wild, a hostile land, theirs was the work of constructing a new society, a civilization, to which despotic Europe, then a stranger, could not tolerate.

Its safeguards—the church, the school, the civic magistracy, they were careful to bring with them, to plant and nurture as on a more congenial soil, and which, deeply rooted, still yield for us their golden fruits.

On September 15th, 1655, sixty-four canoes of armed savages landed at New Amsterdam, and began to break into the houses for plunder. All was alarm and confusion, Governor Stuyvesant being absent on an expedition to the Delaware with most of the garrison, and the enraged Indians began a slaughter of the settlers, full fifty of whom fell in three days, while over a hundred, mostly women and children, were carried into captivity.

Hordes of armed savages, thirsting for blood, swept over the flat at Harlem, slaying the settlers, plundering and burning their homes, and devastating their bouweries. The Indians had threatened to root out the Dutch, and kept their word, nor did they spare the English either, and the history of these flats up to this period presented but a series of adversities, so it was considered time to arrest single-handed attempts to plant bouweries, costing as they had so many valuable lives.

An interesting period is that which gave origin to the village of Harlem, which section was to be peopled and cultivated, but by some new and more efficient mode than that already tried, and the Government had another object in view than that of promoting the settlement of this district. This was to enhance the safety of New Amsterdam, as would result from planting a strong village with a garrison, on this frontier end of the island.

On March 4th, 1658, the Director General and Council of New Netherland resolved to form a new village, and ground was broken for the new settlement on August 14th, ensuing, hilarity and good cheer marking the occasion. With its new advent into life and activity, the infant settlement was called Nieuw Haerlem, from that famous city of North Holland.

Soon several buildings were erected in the new village, and the settlers, having steadily increased in numbers, now deemed themselves entitled to a court of Justice, nominating a number of the best qualified persons to rule as Magistrates, submitting their names to the Director and Council, who confirmed three, they assuming their duties on August 16th, 1660.

Some of the inhabitants, in want of servants and laborers, bought a number of negro slaves, sold at auction in Ft. Amsterdam, May 29th, 1664, they having arrived a few days before in the ship Sparrow, from Curacao, these probably being the first slaves owned at Harlem.

An English fleet appeared suddenly before Fort Amsterdam, under Col. Richard Nichols, and made an easy conquest of the province.

The Fort was surrendered on Sept. 8th, 1664, and the city, as also the province, named New York. The wise and conciliatory course taken by the new governor, Nichols, could not at once allay the feeling of indignation which found expression among the Harlem people, or repair the injury inflicted on the whole colony.

On the 11th of October, 1667, Governor Nichols gave the people of Harlem a patent, ample in its terms, which confirmed the titles of the owners, and determined and settled their landed rights.

The Holland and Zeeland fleets recaptured the fort at New York, on August 10th, 1673, in the name of the United Netherlands, naming the fort, "Willem Hendrick" and the City, "New Orange."

This political event was in the highest degree pleasing to the Harlem community, promising to its simple Belgian character and customs a happy perpetuity, while it restored, fresh and intact, the memories of the Fatherland. However, the rule of the Dutch was of short duration, for on the 10th of November, 1674, the fort was yielded up to the English Governor, Sir Edmund Andros, re-named Fort James, the city, New York, and the English form of government was restored. By its order to the town, December 7th, nominations were made to fill the places of constable and overseers, the new Schout (sheriff) being David des Marest, Cornelis Jansen Kortright took his seat as an overseer, and with him, Oblinus, Dyckman and Meyer.

A matter of great importance to the freeholders was a renewal or confirmation of the town patent, granted by former Governor Nichols; its confirmation now deemed imperative to preserve and secure these valuable franchises to them, their heirs or successors, so a new patent was drawn up, approved in Council, and signed by Governor Thomas Dongan, March 7th, 1686, the Patentees named being John Delaval, Resolved Waldron, Joost Van Oblinus, Daniel Tourneur, Adolph Mayer, John Spragge, Jan Hendrick Breevort, Jan Delamater, Barent Waldron, Isaac Delamater, Johannes Vermilje, Lawrence Jansen (Kortright), Peter Van Oblinus, Jan Dyckman, Jan Nagel, Arent Harmense Bussing, Cornelis Jansen (Kortright), Hester Delamater, Jacqueline Tourneur, Johannes Verveelen, William Haldron, Abraham Montagne and Pieter Parmentier.

No mention of a church edifice, or any effort to erect one here occurs until 1664, although Domine Michiel Zyperus, who came in 1660, a licentiate, who could preach and teach, but not perform the marriage ceremony, administer the sacraments, or admit to church membership, caused the flock at Harlem to resort to Stuyvesant's Bouwery, where Rev. Henry Selyns had been installed pastor, many having been received as members there, or in the church of Brooklyn, several miles away.

Domine Zyperus having departed, the religious interests suffering, and the congregation being unable to support a minister, Jan La Montagne was selected to fill the office of "Voorleser", or parish clerk, his duties being to lead in singing, read a sermon from some orthodox Dutch divine, comfort the sick, perform the burial service, instruct the children, and to these were usually added the duties of public auctioneer. Thereafter, the church had a regular succession of Voorlesers, to perform the various duties named.

At a feast given by the magistrates to Governor Stuyvesant, Jan. 23rd, 1665, in the new church which had been recently erected, the people sought counsel of their honored guest before he should leave for Holland, his advice being greatly leaned upon and valued.

This church, serving for a school-house also, was built on the north side of the Great Way, (since the Church Lane), on a vacant lot reserved for this purpose, and in 1680, measures were taken to build a new church, the old one being no longer adapted to the needs and improved tastes of the community, though still answering for a school.

The church was built of stone, upon a new site, Laurens Kortright and the Delamater family giving up their two north erven for this purpose.

It was thirty-six Dutch feet square, with a small steeple, and covered with shingles, and when completed, there came a proud moment for the villagers; it was when the gilded "haen", or weather cock, with the cap on which it perched, was raised to its lofty position on the tip of the steeple.

On September 30th, 1686, Domine Henry Selyns preached the first sermon in the new church, administered the Lord's Supper, and a liberal collection, twenty-two florins, was taken up.

Before the people separated, they nominated new town officers, who were Jan Van Brevoort, constable, and Jan Dyckman, Lawrence Jansen Kortright, and Isaac Delamater, magistrates, who were sworn in at New York, November 2nd, 1686.

It was three fourths of a century after the new church was built before the congregation secured a pastor to live among them, but the ministry of Domine Selyns, who preached frequently, seems to have gone smoothly, till the breaking out of the Leisler troubles in 1689, when several old members died, among them, Cornelis Jansen Kortright.

The Sunday services were kept up without interruption, under the lead of Guiliaem Bertholf, and the other voorlesers who succeeded him, and finally, in 1765, the church called Rev. Martinus Schoonmaker, who took up his residence at Harlem.

The court records, valuable as an index of the public morals, show that cases of trespass, slander and breach of the peace were too common, but that not a single manslaughter, action for divorce, a clear case of larceny or other serious crime is reported for the entire period under review. The inhabitants, wedded to plain and primitive habits, preserved all their characteristics in their ways and modes of living. Their houses began to be constructed with regard to permanence and even to style, being built of stone, of ample dimensions, though of only one full story. The low ceilings exposed heavy oak beams, often planed and beaded, and taste sometimes demanded wainscoting, either plain or in panels, around the rooms and hall, and up the broad stairway, with its oaken balustrades, leading to the loft.

The panes in the windows were about seven by nine inches, often set in leaden cross-bars, and protected by close strong shutters.

The fireplace, with usually no jambs, supported by the walls, gave ample room for all about the fire, and thus suspended, the chimney mouth opened wide, to catch the sparks and smoke, forming a convenient place in the proper season, to hang up hams, sausage and beef.

No people could have been more independent than the farmer, who burnt his own lime, made all the boots and shoes for the family, did most of his own carpenter work, while their help in the heavy farm work was mainly African slaves, numbering one to four whites.

The children were brought up to habits of industry, the sons invariably given a trade, and the daughters well taught in all household duties, while she who could not show her stores of domestic linens and other products of her maidenly skill, was considered but a poor candidate for matrimony. As soon as the flax and wool could be prepared in the fall, the women brought out the spinning wheel and made "homespun", as it was termed, to supply the family with clothing.

The carpet, when first introduced called in derision a dirt cover, was unknown here in those days. The bare floors, as scrupulously clean as the bare table on which they ate their food, was scrubbed, sprinkled with fine beach sand, and swept in waves or other figures, a sample of the general tidiness which ruled the premises.

Living so largely within themselves, they knew little of the dangers and diseases incident to luxury and indolence, and their pride was of a kind that was no bar to pleasure, if their only coach was a common wagon, or perchance an ox-cart, while their home-made linsey-woolsey gave content equally with the finest imported fabrics.

They were sociable, their tables being as free to their neighbors as to themselves, and hospitality could not do too much for the guest it welcomed, while their doors were wide open to let charity in and out, either to assist each other or relieve a stranger.

Intermarriages among the resident families was the rule, and he was thought a bold swain who ventured beyond the pale of the community to woo a mate, but an unaffected welcome awaited the blushing bride on her first arrival from the charming vales of Bloomingdale, the hills of Westchester, or rural home at Bergen, Hackensack or Esopus.

Large productive farms and a convenient market for all they had to sell, led to certain wealth, and no thriftier farmers were to be found anywhere. They were proud, too, of their broad acres, fine stock, lands well tilled and barns well filled, but nothing could win them to the display and ceremony of city life; though the latter, simplicity itself as compared with the demands of modern fashion, sets in stronger contrast the unpretentious yet rational style of living, which obtained in even the wealthier families. English modes and manners could make but slow advance among a people so tenacious of the Holland tongue, who for half a century kept their records in Dutch, and their accounts in guilders and stivers.

ESOPUS AND MINISINK

Esopus was originally a general name for the large and indefinite tract of country in which Wiltwick, now Kingston, (Ulster Co., N. Y.) is situated, and the name was subsequently applied, in a popular way, to Kingston itself, which was settled by the Dutch and French prior to 1657. In the spring of 1661, Gov. Peter Stuyvesant "Observing the situation and condition of the place called 'Esopus', and pleased thereat, erected our place into a village, and honored it with the name of Wiltwick."

The deed from the Indians to Thomas Chambers, who was one of the leading men there, was dated June 5, 1652, and on the 15th of April, 1660, Robert Swartwout was appointed the first "Schout," and Evert Pels, Cornelise Barentse Shlect and Albert Heymans Roosa, the first "Schepens."

The old Dutch Church was organized on August 17th, 1659, when Hermanus Blom, whom Gov. Stuyvesant had sent to be Pastor there, preached two sermons, which were gratefully received by the settlers.

He served until 1668, and thereafter the Church had a regular succession of Pastors, among whom were Laurentius Van Gaasbeeck, Johannes Petrus Nucella, Georgius Wilhelm Mancius, and Domine Petrus Vas, the latter serving from 1710 to 1756, and greatly beloved by his people.

MOMBACCUS was the name of the general tract of country now embraced, in whole or in part, in the town of Rochester, Ulster County.

This tract was not called Rochester until early in the 18th century, after which the name of Mombaccus was applied, as it now is, to a small locality in the same town.

MINISINK is the name originally applied to a mining settlement by the Dutch and Swedes, on both banks of the Delaware River, prior to 1700, extending from the Water Gap, in a northerly direction about 40 miles. The Minisink region included a considerable portion of western and northern New Jersey, and the southerly sections of Orange and Sullivan counties, in the state of New York, as they now exist and part of the counties of Pike, Monroe and Northampton, in Pennsylvania.

The village of Minisink was situated in New Jersey, near the confluence of the Delaware and Neversink rivers.

There is a township in Orange County named Minisink, organized in 1780, which originally comprised a large area extending to the New Jersey line, but now considerably smaller.

The "Minisink" patent, granted by the Crown in 1704, covered a considerable portion of the Minisink country, and was so general and indefinite as to its boundaries, that for a long time it was a disturbing element among the inhabitants, owing to other grants of land about the same time.

The "Wawayanda" patent was granted in 1703, and the settlers of these patents had serious conflicts with the people of New Jersey, growing out of the uncertain boundary line of New York and New Jersey.

No action could be taken or maintained by either party, many hard and personal struggles took place to gain possession of the lands in question, and a lawless violence reigned over the disputed territory for more than three-quarters of a century, but the dispute was finally settled in 1707, by dividing the territory equally, or as nearly so as possible.

The Minisink was settled largely by Holland Dutch, who strayed down from Esopus, Mombaccus, Rochester, Marbletown and other places in Ulster County, whose descendants remained on the premises of their forefathers until after the Revolution.

At an early day, the people along the Delaware and Neversink Rivers, in the Minisink region, for a distance of forty miles, having a desire to hear the Gospel preached, concluded to form four congregations and to support one Minister. As there was no one to officiate in that capacity, and the people being generally from Holland, and of the Dutch Reformed Church, sent a young man, John Casperus Freyenmuth, to Holland, there to educate himself for the Ministry.

He went, finished his studies, was ordained, and became Minister of the four churches or congregations in 1741. He was agreeable to the people and gratefully remembered, his services continuing until 1755, when the French and Indian war started. In 1764, the Rev. Thomas Romeyn (Romaine) became Minister, his services continuing for several years, with satisfaction to himself, as well as to the people.

The Register of the Reformed Church at Machackemeck (Deerpark) shows that this church began services August 19, 1716, the Pastor on this occasion being Domine Petrus Vas, who lived in Kingston, and who often thereafter officiated. This church was in Deerpark, about a mile south of Port Jervis, near the junction of the Delaware and Neversink Rivers, and was burned during the Revolution, but on the same spot a new church was built.

The Walpeck Congregation was the name of the ancient church at a town formerly termed Walpeck, in Sussex County, New Jersey, a few miles south of Deerpark, and the register of this church shows services began there in 1741, under the ministry of John Casperus Freyenmuth.

The Smithfield Church was at Smithfield, Monroe Co., Pa., about ten miles from the Walpeck Church, while the Minisink Church, at Minisink, was situated eight miles south-west of the Machackemeck Church, in Montague township, near the line.

These were the four churches mentioned, all within a few miles of one another, and whose records have preserved much of interest pertaining to the early settlers.

The whole Minisink country was repeatedly raided by Indians during the Revolution, many of the settlers being killed and much property destroyed, and in 1778 and 1779, Brant's Indians swept through the Rondout and Neversink Valleys, with torch and gun, leaving death and destruction in their path.

"With Brant and Butler and their savages and Tories on one hand, and British hosts on the other, the little town of Minisink and surrounding hamlets suffered all the horrors of a most bitter war.

The friends of today became the foes of tomorrow, and massacre of the settlers was of frequent occurrence. Scattered embers and smoking ruins in this and that little clearing amid the forests along the Delaware, Mohawk and Neversink, told where yesterday had stood the log-built homes of the pioneers, their crops and stock destroyed.

Patriot fathers fought unequal battles against lurking Indian or more treacherous Tory, while patriotic mothers, guarding their little ones, fled in terror here and there, hiding in the woods, with berries and herbs for food, the forest wilds their only shelter from the elements and foes alike.

Many women and children, refugees from the Wyoming Valley, perished from fatigue in trying to cross a swamp, known as the "Shades of death", while several children were born in that fearful spot, only to die there with their unhappy mothers.

Many there were who met death in massacre and battle, from ambush and open field, as on July 3d, 1778, at Wyoming, November 11th, same year, at Cherry Valley, and in July, 1779, the battle of Minisink, in which the town and near settlements were destroyed.

In the early autumn of 1779, General Sullivan and General James Clinton, with five thousand men, conducted an expedition in two divisions, one going west from Minisink, the other north-west of the Mohawk to Canajoharie, when it turned to the south-west along the Susquehanna.

The two columns met at Tioga Point, and on August 29th, 1779, routed 1,500 Tories and Indians, under Johnson, Butler and Brant, the battle taking place at Newton, now Elmira."

THE COURTRIGHT (KORTRIGHT) FAMILY

Bastiaen Van Kortryk, a native of the city of Kortryk, West Flanders, Belgium, emigrated to Holland about 1615, settling in the town of Leerdam, as has been shown. He had sons Jan and Michiel.

FIRST GENERATION IN AMERICA.

- +1 Jan Bastiaensen (Van Kortryk), born 1618, at Leerdam, Holland, went to the town of Beest, not far from Leerdam, where he married and where his children were born, these being Cornelis, Hendrick, Laurens and Belitie. With his brother Michiel and their families, he sailed for New Amsterdam, embarking in the Spotted Cow April 16th, 1663, and had a Bouwery on Staten Island, but probably spent a part of his time at Harlem.
- +2 Michiel Bastiaensen (Van Kortryk), born 1620, at Leerdam, also married and removed to the village of Schoonrewoert, not far from Leerdam, where his children, Reyer, Metje, Annetie and Bastiaen were born, his fifth child, Aefie, born in Harlem. They all came in the Spotted Cow in 1663, with Jan and his family, and soon came to Harlem, later making their home at Fordham.

SECOND GENERATION.

I JAN BASTIAENSEN (VAN KORTRYK). ISSUE:

- +3 Cornelis Jansen (Kortright), whose descendants composed the principal part of the late Kortright family of Harlem, was born at Beest, in Gelderland, Holland, in 1645, came out with his father, Jan Bastiaensen, in 1663, and in 1665, married Metje, daughter of Bastiaen Eleyessen, and the widow of Claes Teunisz Van Appeldorn, a lady who, after Jansen's early death in 1689, proved her ability both to manage his business and enhance his estate, the use of which, under his will dated Feb. 25, of said year, (but not proved till March 18th, 1706), she was to enjoy till her death or re-marriage.

Having been a trooper, he gave his eldest son Johannes, "the best horse, and the best saddle, and the best boots, and the best pistols, and holsters, and carbines and cutlass." He also left him, over and above his share of the estate, "the lot of land at Jochem Pieters, to wit;—the lot by the great gate."

A notable transaction was Nicholas de Meyer's sale Sept. 25th, 1669, of the two farms embraced in his patent, to the brothers Cornelis and Laurens Jansen, the first of whom being the ancestor of the Kortright family, or that branch afterwards known for its large landed possessions, of which this purchase formed the nucleus.

The removal of Verveelen having left the village (Harlem) without an ordinary keeper, Cornelis Jansen Kortright, who was well liked in the town, and afterwards enjoyed various public trusts, was admitted June 2d, 1670, to keep the ordinary on the usual conditions—to make suitable provisions for travellers, and not to sell any liquor to the Indians; he thereupon accepted the oath.

Cornelis and Laurens Jansen, having for a year worked the farm bought in partnership of Mr. De Meyer, agreed to part, as Laurens was about to lease the farm of Lubbert Gerritsen. The parties met for the purpose, Oct. 24th, 1670, and contracts were partly drawn, when they failed to agree. Cornelis having taken the De Meyer farm, Laurens on May 5th, 1671, gave him a lease of his part for four years, at the yearly rental of 400 guilders in grain. Their father, Jan Bastiaensen, and Bastiaen Eleyessen, the father-in-law of Cornelis, were present and subscribed this agreement. Laurens went to Esopus and married, and is not found at Harlem for several years.

Cornelis Jansen Kortright was constable in 1672, overseer in 1674, and 1681, and commissioner of the town court Feb. 2d, 1686 and Nov. 1st, 1687. On November 7th, 1673, by a majority of votes cast by the town, he was chosen and confirmed Captain of the Night Watch, consisting of four companies or corporalships, as some of the English exasperated at the recovery of the country by the Dutch, began to make trouble. He with others, was admitted to church membership at New Amsterdam, March 1st, 1673, and was a liberal supporter thereof.

On Feb. 6th, 1675, the Jansens, Cornelis and Laurens, completed a division of the lands bought of De Meyer, Cornelis taking the farm on Montagne's Flat, lots 18, Jochem Pieters, and 15, Van Keulen's Hook, and the two out-gardens.

Laurens took lot 2, Jochem Pieter's and lot 6, Van Kuelen's Hook, with the two erven, and also the orchard occupying two north gardens.

Laurens part being of most value, as it included the buildings, he agrees to give his brother 600 guilders. This property, as thus divided, composed the beginnings, respectively, of the Kortright and Low estates.

An event locally interesting was Cornelis Jansen's removal to his land on Montagne's Flat, since known as the Nutter Farm. On April 30th, 1684, he engaged Adrianus Westerhout to build him a house there, 22 by 36 feet, to be ready in six weeks, for which he agreed to pay 800 guilders in fat cattle, wheat and rye. Here Jansen established the famous tavern and stopping place, commonly called the Half-way House, and which continued to be kept after his death in 1689, by his widow.

It stood on the west side of Harlem Lane, at the foot of the hill about 109th Street. A little above this site, Valentine Nutter, on getting possession of the Kortright farm after the Revolution, built a new residence, which remained till swept away by the opening of 6th Avenue, on which it stood, its north corner touching 110th Street.

On March 7th, 1686, Thomas Dongan, Captain-General and Governor of the Province of New York, granted a patent to the proprietors which confirmed the patent granted by the former Governor, Richard Nichols, October 11th, 1667. On the list of patentees are named Cornelis and Laurens Jansen (Kortright), whose valuable franchises were secured to them, their heirs and successors, by the Dongan Patent, as it was professedly designed for quieting the freeholders and inhabitants in their ancient rights and privileges.

The widow, from her husband, is usually called Metje Cornelis, once Metje Jansen, and sometimes, from her father, Metje Bastiaens.

As the lists show, she drew largely of the common lands in the Flat: in the deed dated March 21, 1701, "bounded by a line leading from the southwest corner of the kitchen as the fence runs, to a small brook till it meets with the old lots of Cornelis Kortright, deceased."

In 1715, her family held 246 acres, of which Laurens Cornelissen held exclusively 77, and he and the other heirs jointly 169, which from 1715 to 1726, stood in the name of "Metje Cornelis' heirs."

The children of Cornelis Jansen and Metje (Bastiaens) Kortright were Aefie, Johannes, Annetie, Maria and Laurens, all of whom were called Cornelissen.

+4 Hendrick Jansen (Kortright), came with his father, Jan, in 1663 and bought land near Stuyvesant's Bouwery, Feb. 12th, 1669, but did not long hold it. He first styled himself Van Beest, but later in life from his father's birth place, was called Hendrick Jansen Van Kortright, and in the church records, his name was usually written Hendrick Jansen.

He and his brother Laurens, going to Esopus, both married there, Hendrick, on Dec. 14, 1672, to Catharine Hansen, "born in New York." She was probably a daughter of Hans Webber, "master at arms," who died in 1649, and whose widow, Elsje Pieters van Hamburg, married in 1650, Matthys Capido, removed to Esopus, and was killed by the Indians in 1663. On Sept. 28th, 1647, Hans Webber was appointed Captain at arms to the garrison at Fort Amsterdam, and on Sept. 1st, 1749, he was given power of attorney, by Anthony Barmoede, a Spaniard, to receive his share of the prize Tobasco.

Hendrick's first child being born at Harlem, in 1674, he was probably then living there, but as before stated, he settled in Ulster County, buying land at Mombakus, town of Rochester, where he raised a large family who bore the name of Kortright or Cortright, and whose descendants have become numerous and widely scattered.

Hendrick lost his wife in 1740, and he died in 1741, aged 93., their children being Jan, Hendrick, Cornelis, Geertje, Arie, Antje, Laurens, Jacob, Jannetje, Peter, and Cathryn.

John, Cornelis, Lawrence and Peter Cortright subscribe for the minister at Rochester in 1717, and were leading men there.

+5 Laurens Jansen (Kortright), b. 1651, at Beest, Gelderland, Holland, and ancestor of the LOW family of Harlem, was the youngest son of Jan Bastiaensen (Van Kortryk), and came in 1663, with his parents.

He married in 1672, Mary, dau. of Albert Heymans Roosa, and his wife, Wyntje Ariens, at Esopus. The Roosa family came from Herwynen, Gelderland, Holland, sailing in the Bonte-koe, April 15th, 1660, and went immediately to Esopus, where he and his wife united with the church of which two years after, he became an elder.

Governor Stuyvesant giving a name to Wiltwick (Esopus), May 16th, 1661, appointed Roosa one of its first schepens. Here he took up land, for which he got a patent in 1664, and died in 1679, leaving a good estate, and eight surviving children.

Laurens Jansen's share of the De Meyer lands, bought jointly with his brother Cornelis, laid the foundation of the ample estate he acquired at Harlem, but which, with his grandsons, passed out of the name.

His election as an overseer in 1677, and repeatedly afterward, and the other responsible duties intrusted to him, evince the respect in which he was held. He died in 1727, probably at Harlem.

His name was usually written in the church records as Louwerens Jansen, and following the established Dutch custom of the time, his children were called Louwe, afterward shortened to Low, which was adopted as the family name, by his children, and not the name of Kortright, which most of the other descendants did.

His children were Annetie, Albert, Wyntie, Neeltie, John, Gysbert, Cornelis, Belitie, and Lawrence.

6 Belitie (Isabella or Arabella) Jans was the youngest child and only daughter of Jan Bastiaensen, coming with her parents to Harlem in 1663, but as before stated, she, with her brother Hendrick removed to Esopus, where she m. Dec. 8th, 1678, Jacob Jansen Decker, she being 19 years of age, having been born in 1651.

They had a large family of children, whose descendants were very numerous, and now scattered widely.

2 MICHIEL BASTIAENSEN (VAN KORTRIGHT), issue:

+7 Reyer Michiels, eldest son of Michiel Bastiaensen, was b. at Schoonrewoerd, Holland, in 1653, coming in 1663 with his parents; he m. April 15, 1686, Jacomyntje, dau. of Jan Tibout, settling at Fordham, where he took part in building the church, of which he was an active member.

"A mortgage given by John Archer to Cornelis Steenwyck, of New York, in 1676, gave him full title and possession of the Manor of Fordham, which passed under his will and by certain deeds, to the Dutch church of New York. In getting possession, the church met with great opposition from the town of Westchester. This led in 1688 to a forcible entry by the officers and friends of the church. Elijah Barton, engaged with his father, Roger Barton, to keep possession for and in behalf of the town of Westchester, when on July 16th, in the afternoon, there came a great company of men with Nicholas Bayard, of New York, demanding admittance.

This being refused, Reyer Michiels and Teunis De Key, at Bayard's word, broke open the door and the Bartons were ousted and roughly handled.

With Bayard were also Nicholas Stuyvesant, Johannes Kip, Isaac Van Vleeck, Michiel Bastiaens and his wife, and sons Bastiaen, Reyer, Michiel, Hendrick Kiersen, and Jacques Tourneur. Also, "in the exploit" was Hannah (or Anna) Odell.

The Westchester authorities issued a warrant July 20th, "to take the bodies of the said Reyer Michiels, with the said complycetors", but the church maintained its hold and the lands were ultimately sold.

Reyer Michiels died in 1733, having had children, Michiel, Reyer, Hendrick, Teunis, Hannah, Mary, Sarah, Jane, Jacomyntie, Johannes, some of whom being called Michiels and others Reyers.

- 8 Metje Michiels, b. in Holland, 1655, m. May 16, 1673, Hendrick Kiersen, son of Kier Wolters, and lived at Fordham.
- 9 Annetie Michiels, b. in Holland, in 1658, m. John Odell, who was the ancestor of the Fordham Odells.
- +10 Bastiaen Michielsen, always so styled in the town books though in the church records usually called Bastiaen Kortright, came in 1663, with his parents, who lived at Harlem, afterward at Fordham.

He was born at Schoonrewoerd in 1662, the second son of Michiel Bastiaensen, and did not remove to Fordham as did the others, but remained at Harlem, where on March 28th, 1689, he married Jolante, daughter of John and Maria (Vermilye) La Montagne.

On Sept. 19th, 1701, he bought from Peter Van Oblinus a tract of land at Sherman's Creek, laid out in 1691, as lot No. 20.

This became the well-known Kortright farm, which continued in the family till 1786, consisting of forty-five acres and twenty perches.

Here Bastiaen Michielsen Kortright built and lived till very aged, at least his name in the tax list runs down to 1753. He also was the owner of two pieces of meadow at Kingbridge, the town giving him a deed Jan. 4th, 1700.

His children were Michael, Johannes, Aefie and Rachel.

- 11 Aefie Michiels, youngest child of Michiel Bastiaensen, was b. at Harlem in 1665, and m. June 17, 1683, Jacques Tourneur, son of Daniel and Jacqueline Tourneur. They resided at Fordham.

10 BASTIAEN MICHIENSEN AND JOLANTE (LA MONTAGNE)
KORTRIGHT, issue:

- 59 Susanna, m. 1735, Aaron Meyer.
- 60 Margaret, m. 1740, Abraham Meyer.

Cornelis Kortright (54), eldest son of Laurens Cornelissen Kortright, m. Hester, dau. of John Cannon, of New York, and owned property in Queen (now Pearl) Street, where he carried on the baking business.

He was assistant alderman of Montgomery Ward, 1738-40. His two slaves, implicated in the Negro Plot of 1741, were transported to San Domingo. After his death Apr. 15, 1745, his business was continued by his widow and son Cornelius.

Aaron Kortright (56), m. Margaret, dau. of John Delamater. He purchased the Delamater farm on Montagne's Flat, and accompanying lands, part of which he sold, and recovered by purchase the lower half of the Delamater farm, which embraced 12 acres east of the Lane, on which were the buildings, and 60 acres on the Flat, a portion being on the heights.

In 1762 and 1765, he gave liens on some of his lands bought of Delamater to his nephew, Lawrence Kortright, and finally the two made an exchange, Apr. 28, 1772, Lawrence taking the farm and woodlands, and giving Aaron and his wife a deed for 241 acres of the Wawayanda patent in Orange County, to go after their death to their sons, Lawrence, John and Aaron Kortright—whither they removed, and where their descendants are still found.

Lawrence Kortright (57), the last of the name to hold the homestead, died in 1761, unmarried. He had devised his estate to one Sarah Gilmore, wife of William Nutter, and afterward, Apr. 5, 1760, gave her a deed for the farm and two woodland lots. But by another will, of Nov. 8th, ensuing, he revokes, to quote his words, "a pretended last will and testament said to have been made by me in favor of Sarah Nutter, which last will and testament, (if any such there be), and also certain deeds of lease and release for my real estate, (if such there be), pretended to have been made and executed by me to her, I do declare, on the faith of a Christian, to have been obtained from me by fraud and circumvention, and without any valuable consideration received by me for the same."

By this second will, he divides his property among his kindred, and the Kortright heirs refusing to give up the premises, Valentine Nutter, only child and heir of Sarah, brought an ejectment suit in 1771; but after "divers difficulties, controversies and disputes about the said lands," a compromise was made, Aaron Kortright and his co-heirs, for a consideration, releasing their claims by deeds dated 1789 and 1799.

Lawrence Kortright (128), the eldest son of Cornelius, also a merchant, became wealthy and prominent. In the old French war he was part owner of several privateers fitted out at New York against the enemy. He was one of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce in 1768. He had a large interest in Tryon County lands, and on his purchase the township of Kortright was settled. He had identified himself with the Episcopal Church, and during the Revolution remained quiet at his residence, but his sympathies were with his country. His residence was 192 Queen Street about the time mentioned. In 1778, partly on his security, Judge Fell, then a prisoner in the Provost, obtained his release. He died in 1794, but before his death he conveyed his farm at Harlem with some woodland, to his only son, John.

THE COURTRIGHT FAMILY OF THE WYOMING VALLEY, PA.

FIRST GENERATION.

- ⑪ 1. JAN BASTIAENSEN, son of Bastiaen Van Kortryk, came, as we have seen, from the small town of Beest, in Gelderland, Holland, sailing April 16, 1663, in the ship Spotted Cow, accompanied by his brother Michiel, and their respective families. Jan was the owner of a bouwery, or farm, on Staten Island, spent part of his time at Harlem, but there is very little recorded of his early history.

His children, all born at Beest, came with him, and finally settled at Harlem, a small village eight miles north of New Amsterdam, their names being Cornelis, Hendrick, Laurens and Belitie.

SECOND GENERATION

- ⑩ 2. HENDRICK JANSEN. (VAN COURTRIGHT), soon after his arrival, purchased land near Stuyvesant's Bouwery, on Feb. 12th, 1669, but did not long hold it, and with his brother Laurens, went to Esopus, (Kingston) Ulster County, New York, where he married on Dec. 14, 1672, Catharine, dau. of Hans and Elsje (Pieters, van Hamburg) Webber. The court record of this marriage states she was "born in New York"; Hans Webber was appointed Captain at arms to the garrison at Fort Amsterdam, on Sept. 28, 1647, and died in 1649, and his widow married in 1650, Matthys Capito, removed to Esopus, where she was killed by the Indians in 1663. Hendrick evidently lived at Harlem for a time, as his first child was born there, in 1674, but he afterward purchased land at Mombaccus, Township of Rochester, where he raised his family.

Hendrick Jansen Cortrecht was among the list of early freeholders and inhabitants of the town of Rochester, who on January 20th, 1714, was assessed the sum of six shillings, ten pence, he at that time being estimated to be worth fifty-five pounds sterling in assessable wealth. On Sept. 22, 1703, his name appears on the "Quit rent" list.

He died in 1741, aged 93 years, and his wife in 1740, having had children, Jan, Hendrick, Cornelis, Geertie, Arie, Antie, Jacob, Louwerens, Jannetje, Pieter, and Catryn.

THIRD GENERATION

3. CORNELIS HENDRICKSEN COURTRIGHT, third child of Hendrick, was baptized in the Reformed Dutch Church at New York, the record being, "Cornelis, son of Hendrick Janszen and Catharyn Hans, baptized Nov. 3d, 1680, the sponsors being Jacob Janszen (Decker), Belitie Jans, and Reyer Michielszen." His marriage is thus recorded in the Dutch Church, at Kingston, "Cornelis Hendricksen, j. m., born in Mombackes, and Christina Roosekrans, j. d., born in Kingstouwn, and both residing in Mombackes, married December 26, 1701."

For several years he lived at Rochester, where with his brothers, he was a prominent man, but later in life removed to Marbletown, not far from Rochester, where several of his children were born, and after living there several years, he probably removed to the Minisink district, in Monroe County, Penn., as his wife joined the church there, known as the Smithfield church, June 23, 1745, "upon the representation of satisfactory certificates, in the presence of Niclas Du Pay, elder of the church." He and his wife witnessed the baptism of a grand-child in 1736, so probably he was living in Monroe Co., Pa., at the time, which then was included in Northampton County.

His name was written in the church records variously as, Cortregt, Cortrecht, Cortreght, etc., and sometimes with a K.

The records of the church at Kingston show his children were, Hendrick, Magdalena, Catrina, Johannes, Sara, Cornelis, and Benjamin, all of whom came to the Minisink district, except the latter two, who remained in Ulster County.

Harmen Hendricksen Roosekrans (or Rosenkrans) came from Bergen, Norway, about 1655, he then being forty-three years of age.

He had been admitted a "small" burgher of New York in 1658, and on March 3, 1657, m. Magdaleen (Madeleen) Dircks, a dau. of Dirck and Christina (Vinge) Volckertsen, and widow of Cornelis Hendricksen van Dort, "Caper," or privateersman, who was killed by the Indians in 1655. Before Feb. 7, 1662, Harmen and his wife removed to Esopus, afterward known as Wiltwick, (and under the English,—Kingston), Ulster County, New York, where he engaged in farming.

Prior to his removal there, he had been a soldier at Kingston, and was the only captive to escape from the Indians after their uprising Sept. 29th, 1659, in reprisal of the Dutch attack, he having been captured, bound and exposed to the rays of the autumn sun. (N. Y. Col. Mss.)

He and his wife sold liquor to the Indians, and for this and other matters, were frequently in Court, and in 1684, as one of the petitioners at Kingston seeking leave to elect town officers, etc., he was fined by Governor Dongan. Harmen and his wife acquired considerable land in Ulster County, where they lived for many years, raising a large family of children, who were, so far as known:

Alexander, bap. N. Y., Apr. 12, 1661, m. Marritjen De Pue.

⑧ Delva, and m. 3d, Gerretje Van Benschoten.

Christina, m. Cornelis Hendricksen Cortright, Dec. 26, 1701.

Dirck, m. Wyntie Kierstede, wid. of Jan De Witt.

Sarah, unm., made will, June 17, 1726, naming her mother, Magdalena, and Hendrick, Derick, Alexander, Rachel and Christian, and Hendrick, son of Christian.

Dirck Volkertsen, (Noorman), was an early settler and prominent farmer in Brooklyn, at Bushwick Creek, where he built his home in 1640, and in 1649, he and his wife, Christina Vinge, became members of the Reformed Dutch Church at New Amsterdam; they had several children, among these being, Magdaleen, who m. Harmen Hendricksen Roosekrans, in 1657.

Gulian, (or Julian) Vinge, and his wife, Adrianna Cuveille, came from Valenciennes, France, in 1613 or 1614, probably on a trading expedition, as traders came soon after Hendrick Hudson discovered the river now bearing his name, but at this time there was no settlement, the first one being established in 1623.

He had children, b. in France, Rachel, m. Cornelis Van Tienhoven; Maria, m. Abraham Verplanck; Christina, m. Dirck Volckertsen; and John, b. in New Amsterdam, circa 1614, who m. Emmerens Van Nieuw-erzluys, m. 2d, Weiske Huytes, widow of Andries Andriessen.

John was the first child of European parents b. in New Amsterdam, and probably in all the territory north of Virginia, eleven years before Sarah Rapalje, and at the earliest period compatible with the sojourn of any Hollanders upon our territory, so there must have been at least one European woman in the country at that early period.

FOURTH GENERATION

- ⑧ 4. HENDRICK CORNELISSEN CORTRIGHT, b. in Rochester township, Ulster County, N. Y., was bap. in the Dutch Reformed Church at Kingston, which is thus recorded, "baptized March 29, 1703, Hendrick, son of Cornelis Hendricksen and Christina Roosekrans; witnesses and sponsors Hannes Roosekrans, Magdalena Roosekrans."

His marriage is also recorded there, "Hendrik Kortregt, j.m., b. in Raysester (Rochester), and Jannetjen Ennes, j.d., b. in Mormeltown (Marbletown), and both residing in Mormeltown. Banns registered 11 Sept., m. Nov. 6, 1724," by Dominie Petrus Vas.

He resided in Marbletown till about 1736, but came to the Minisink prior to 1739, and in 1745, bought from William Ennes a farm in Delaware Township, Bucks County, (afterward Northampton County, and now Pike) in Pennsylvania, located between Egypt Mills and Bushkill, where he lived the remainder of his life.

Prior to his purchase of this farm, he lived at Walpeck, Sussex County, New Jersey, in what was known as the "lower neighborhood," being listed as a tax-payer, with Hendrick Hendricksen, Abraham Ary, William and Hendrick Cortregt, and Jan Van Vliet, Samuel Swartwout and others, and was one of the pioneer settlers there.

In 1772 and 1781, he was assessed taxes in Delaware Township, Northampton County, (now Pike) and for his day, was a successful farmer, and highly respected man.

Both he and his wife were members of the Reformed Dutch Church known as the "Walpeck Congregation," situated across the Delaware River at Walpeck, Sussex County, N. J., where several of his later children were baptized. He d. in 1787, leaving a will, dated March 27, 1787, proved April 20, 1787, which will interest his descendants, as it proves the descent of many, being also a quaint document, and is as follows:—

Ezekiel Schoonover Moses Cole Thomas Landon

From this will it is seen that Hendrick was a man of religious convictions, and for the times in which he lived, left a considerable estate.

William Innes (or as written by the Dutch, Ennes) was a son of Rev. Alexander Innes, of Scotch descent, Chaplain of New York in 1686, and "Presbiter of the Church of England" in 1692. He married Cornelia Viervant, in Kingston, 1686, who was the only child of Cornelis Arents Viervant, and his wife, Jeanne Le Sueur, whom he married at Kingston, in 1668. Cornelis Arents Viervant was a native of Lexmont, in the Land of Vianen, Utrecht, who first lived at Kingston, but died at Fordham, 1675.

His wife, Jeanne, was the sister of Francois Le Sueur, the ancestor of those who bear his name, both born at Challe-Mesnil or Colmenil, a small market town three miles south of Dieppe, in Normandy, who sailed for New Amsterdam in 1657, neither being married. They first lived at Flatbush, were pioneers at Harlem in 1660, which they left in 1663, removing to Esopus (Kingston). William and Cornelia (Viervant) Ennes had Jannetje, bap. at Kingston, July 17, 1703, m. Hendrick Cortright, Nov. 6, 1724.

Of these children, Cornelis d. in 1752, Daniel in 1788, Johannes in 1772, Benjamin and Abraham before 1787. In his will, dated Feb. 8, 1772, Johannes gives his brothers William, Abraham and Benjamin a bequest of forty pounds each, and mentions no wife or children.

James, Daniel, Benjamin, William and Abraham served as soldiers in the Revolution, William being severely wounded and crippled for life, and thus referred to by his father as "his poor son," in his will.

FIFTH GENERATION

- ⑦ 5. BENJAMIN COURTRIGHT, born at Marbletown, Ulster County, New York 1731, was probably baptized the same year at the Kingston Church, but there is no record of this, as the first leaves of Vol. III, of the Church records, covering the period from April 12, 1730, to January 1732, are missing. He probably came with his parents to the Minisink district in 1736, and his name first appears on the records of the "Walpeck Congregation" as a sponsor in 1750 and again in 1753.

On January 12th, 1756, he and his brother John enlisted as soldiers from the Province of Pennsylvania, in the French and Indian war, under the command of Captain John Van Etten.

In 1772 and again in 1781, he was assessed for taxes in Delaware Township, Northampton County, Penn., where he probably owned property, but he may have remained on his father's farm during his life.

During the Revolution, he served as a soldier, Class 3, of the 6th Battalion, Northampton County Militia, his name appearing on the muster roll for May 14, 1778, under the command of Col. Jacob Stroud and Captain John Van Etten.

His name also appears as an enlisted soldier of the 3d Class of the 1st Company, 6th Battalion, in 1780; the 4th Company, 5th Battalion in 1781; and again in the same Company in 1782, his name being written on the muster rolls variously as Cartright, Cortright, Curtright and Courtright.

In his will of March 27th, 1787, Benjamin's father refers to him as deceased, so he probably died between 1782 and 1787.

The name of his wife was Catrina Hover, (or as now written, Catharine Hoover) whom he married about 1762. She was probably a sister of Henry, who m. Cornelia Cortright, and of Capt. Emanuel Hover, the Hover's owning an adjoining farm, and she may have been a daughter of Johannes Michael Huber, who came in 1731, and m. Catharine Rose in 1742.

The name Huber is derived from an old word, "hutre," meaning the possessor of a small tract of land, or farm, which indicates this family is descended from a clan of Swiss farmers, as the Canton of Zurich, Switzerland, was the original home of the Hubers, many of them still residing there, with records dating back over 800 years.

During the civil and religious disturbances of the 17th century, many of the Hubers were driven from their mountain homes, and fled to Germany, France and other European countries, ultimately coming to America. The ship records at Philadelphia show that nearly fifty Hubers, not including women or children, landed there prior to the Revolution.

In the course of time the spelling of the name has changed, so now the variations are Hover, Hoover, Huver, Hooper and Hooper.

SIXTH GENERATION

- ⑥ +6. CORNELIUS COURTRIGHT, (who thus wrote his name, and as it appears on his monument), was born March 7th, 1764, on the farm of his grandfather, located in Lehman Township, Pike County, Pennsylvania, (but then in Delaware Township, Northampton County) this farm being situated on the bank of the Delaware River, near Port Jervis, and not far from the Delaware Water Gap.

He was baptized April 15, 1764, in the Reformed Dutch Church known as the "Walpeck Congregation," the record being, "Cornelius, son of Benjamin Cortregt and Catrina Hover; witnesses and sponsors, Henderick Hover and Cornelia Hover," Domine Thomas Romaine officiating.

He was one of the executors of his grand-father's will in 1787;

HOME OF HON. CORNELIUS CORTRIGHT (6), PLAINS, LUZERNE COUNTY, PA.

during the Revolution, he enlisted as a soldier of the 4th Company, 5th Battalion, Northampton County Militia, June, 1782, his name being written on the muster roll as Cornelus Courtryt. His name was also on the muster roll of Captain John Van Etten's Company of the 5th Battalion, Northampton County Militia, July 31, 1784, on the expedition to Wyoming, this being probably his first appearance in the Wyoming Valley.

On Oct. 1st, 1786, he married Catharine, daughter of John and Maria (Van Vliet) Kennedy, at Plains, Luzerne Co., Pa., (see Kennedy family).

In November, 1787, he was elected Ensign of the Militia Company from the Upper District of Wilkes Barre, (Daniel Gore, Captain), in the Battalion commanded by Col. Mathias Hollenback.

He made his first purchase of land from William Hooker Smith, on Dec. 30th, 1789, and his second from Timothy Pickering, Sept. 19th, 1791, settled in Plains township, acquired additional land, and lived there during his life, where he was a highly respected man, holding numerous public offices.

He was commissioned Justice of the Peace Jan. 1st, 1806, continuing as such until 1840; was one of the Commissioners for Luzerne County in 1813, 1814, 1815, 1830 and 1832; was a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature in 1820, 1821 and 1823, and a candidate for State Senator in 1816, being defeated for the latter office.

"For a long series of years, he was one of the most active, public spirited and prominent men of the county."

He died May 25th, 1848, and his wife, May 12th, 1846, having had eleven children, who inherited his estate.

+7. HENRY COURTRIGHT, brother of Cornelius, was born on the ancestral farm in Pike County, May 10, 1771, baptized at Walpeck, Sept. 26, 1771, died Mar. 27, 1864, the son of Benjamin Cortregt and Catrina Hover, as the church record shows, and came to the Wyoming Valley soon after his brother Cornelius did, where he also purchased a farm, settling at Plains.

Several years later he sold his farm at Plains, many years before the value of the underlying coal was realized, and removed to Exeter, where he lived for fifteen years, having bought another farm there, but finally removed to Franklin (now Orange), where he bought a large tract of land, of one hundred sixty-six acres, where he continued to reside until his death, March 27, 1864.

As shown by the report of Jesse Fell, Brigade Inspector, he was elected Lieutenant of the 2d Regiment, 1st Battalion, Light Infantry Company, of the Militia of Luzerne County, Feb. 3d, 1794.

"He was a man of force in the community, of sterling qualities, did not aspire to office, yet bore his share of responsibilities, commanding the respect and esteem of all who knew him."

He married Rachel, daughter of Capt. Daniel and Mary (Park) Gore, about 1798, who died April 11, 1848. (see Gore family).

+8. JOHN COURTRIGHT, brother of Cornelius and Henry, was born Apr. 4, 1774, on the farm in Pike (then Northampton) County, baptized at Walpeck May 22, 1774, the church record being "Johannes, son of Benjamin Kortregt and Catrina Hover, by Dr. Jacob R. Hardenberg."

When a young man he inherited a sum of money from the estate of his grandfather, and as did his brothers, came to the Wyoming Valley about the same time, where he became an extensive land owner, settling also in Plains township, where he resided on his farm until his death, Dec. 1, 1822.

For several years, after his sons attained manhood, he kept the tavern at Plains, and was also the first post-master there.

In his will, dated August 29th, 1822, and proved March 23d, 1823, he signs his name "John Cortright," and having made suitable provision for his wife and other children, he devised his landed estate equally to his sons, Cornelius and John Draper Courtright, and directs that his coal bed, in Wilkes Barre Township, near the Pittston line, be disposed of for the benefit of these sons, or the right thereof be vested in them. This coal bed was a tract of about thirty-one acres.

Catharine Cortright and John Cortright, son of Catharine, of Jacobs Plains, widow, conveyed land by deed dated Dec. 20, 1791, the witnesses being Cornelius Cortright and Charrick D. Rosenkrans; and on April 16, 1800, John Cortright conveyed land to Catharine Cortright, mother of said John, witnessed by Cornelius and Henry Cortright, so it is evident that Catharine Hover, the mother of Cornelius, Henry and John Cortright, resided in Plains at the dates mentioned.

John Cortright married Mary (called Polly), daughter of John and Alice (Fuller) Abbott, Dec. 10th, 1800. (see Abbott family).

Henry H. Courtright, when a young man, entered the service of the Lehigh Railroad; came west and for several years was in the employ of the Chicago and Galena Railway; went to Hannibal, Mo., during the Civil War, where he was Agent for the Hannibal & St. Joseph Railway, and often made trips by coach to Santa Fe over the old trail. He later became General Freight Agent of the old Hannibal & St. Joseph Ry., and during the war, General Grant, at that time a Colonel, often used his office at Hannibal for his headquarters. For many years he was General Freight Agent of the Chicago and Alton Ry., located in Chicago, finally becoming chairman of the Western Freight Association.

He was a gentleman of the old school, of fine appearance, courtly bearing, kind and considerate to others, and in a quiet way dispensed charity to many needy families in Chicago. He had a great store of sentiment, was attached to his kindred, and took a great interest in the genealogy of his family, printing a small record of it, which contained all there was available at the time. This tribute to his memory is from one who had the greatest respect and affection for him.

15. HANNAH COURTRIGHT, born at Plains, Feb. 7, 1798, just outside the present limits of Wilkes Barre, Luzerne County, Pa., married John Abbott, a farmer at Plains March 11, 1830, and died May 3, 1892, having attained the extreme old age of over ninety-four years.

At the time of her birth, Wilkes Barre was only a little hamlet in a great wilderness, and she vividly recalled many a ride from her home at Plains to Wilkes Barre, either alone, or on horse-back with her father.

She also remembered well hearing the survivors of the Wyoming massacre tell about that bloody event, for many of them were alive during her recollection—the terrors inspired by the presence of the savages, the eager hanging of the women and children upon the Gospel Minister to shield and protect them, the merciless attack of the British and Indians, the flight across the mountains through the “shades of death” to the Minisink settlements or to Connecticut, the sufferings of the almost naked children, the birth of a child during this mad stampede and the tender efforts of the fugitives to provide for the mother and carry her on blankets fastened to two horses—these and many other incidents were familiar tales to her.

It was hard for her to realize the changes since the old days, the telephone, the telegraph, the electric cars, and many other modern improvements. When speaking of the electric cars, she said they reminded her of lines that ran through her mind, where taken from, not known, “the arm of Omnipotent power they assume, and ride in chariots of fire.” certainly not an unprophetic description.

She was a consistent member of the Methodist church for eighty years, having become a member thereof at the age of fourteen, and throughout her life she was comforted by a faith which never wavered. She was a woman of wonderful energy, of rugged constitution, and up to two years previous to her death, her faculties were unimpaired and at the time of her death, she was the oldest person in Luzerne County.

Soon after the death of her husband in 1861, she removed with her children from her home at Plains, and thereafter resided on the corner of Franklin and Jackson Streets, Wilkes Barre, Pa.

30. CORNELIUS L. COURTRIGHT, born at Plains, Luzerne County, Pa., May 28, 1803, married Harriet Bailey, July 10, 1827, and died Sept. 7, 1894, was a farmer, who with his brother, John Draper, inherited the ancestral farm at Plains, and which they operated for several years.

Afterward he engaged in the contracting business, building a canal along the Susquehanna River, and in 1833, he employed more than 300 men on public work in Virginia, but owing to the cholera, causing the death of half his men, and also afflicted himself, he was unable to complete the work he had undertaken. He later took contracts to convey pine lumber and arks of coal down the Susquehanna River and Chesapeake Bay to Baltimore, which he successfully accomplished.

He returned to his farm at Plains, residing there for a time, but on May 27, 1839, hearing glowing accounts of cheap lands in the west, he sold his farm, not knowing the value of the coal underneath, and with his wife and children, departed in a covered wagon to Detroit, by boat to Chicago, then but a small village, and settled on a farm which he bought near Newark, Kendall County, Illinois, where he lived until death, having attained the ripe age of ninety-one years.

After the death of his wife, he married Mrs. Susanna Luther, July 4, 1852, who survived him several years. He was a man of the highest character, honest, industrious, of sterling qualities, and had the respect and esteem of his friends and neighbors. By his first wife, he had issue:

(See pages 39 and 50)

JOHANNES CORTRIGHT, son of Cornelis Hendricksen and Christina (Roosekrans) Cortright, was born at Marbletown, Ulster County, N. Y., bap. at Kingston, Aug. 15, 1714, and m. Margriet Dennemarken, Jan. 24, 1735. He removed to the Minisink, first settling in the "lower neighborhood" of this district, located in Sussex County, N. J., where in 1731 Johannes Westbrook deeded to him and others, a tract of land for a burying ground and school, the first record of him there.

His brother, Hendrick, also lived there at the time, and both were pioneer settlers in this new country, with other Hollanders who emigrated from Kingston, Marbletown, Hurley, Rochester and other places in Ulster County early in the eighteenth century.

With his family, he removed to Northampton County (now Monroe), Pa. about 1744, across the Delaware River, where he purchased a farm, located in Lower Smithfield Township, his future home.

In 1772, he was assessed there a proprietary tax of four pounds, his son John, Jr., twelve shillings, Christopher, one pound, six shillings and eight pence, and Elisha the same amount.

ALLIED FAMILIES

THE KENNEDY, VAN VLIET, SWARTWOUT AND ALLIED FAMILIES.

JOHN KENNEDY, born April 24, 1739, who came from Bangor, County Down, Ireland, prior to 1762, and settled near Kingston, Ulster County, New York, is the first of this family of whom there is knowledge.

He was of the Scotch Presbyterian faith, and lived near the Kennedy family of Cultra, Ireland, and is supposed to be related to it.

Family tradition assures us that John Kennedy, a tailor by trade, was a man of ability, clear headed and kind hearted.

Soon after coming to America, he enlisted April 6, 1762, as a soldier of the New York Provincial troops, under Capt. James Clinton, the muster roll stating his age twenty-three years, born in Ireland, a "taylor" by trade, stature, five feet, six inches.

He also was on the muster roll of troops raised to guard the western frontiers of Ulster and Orange Counties, enlisting Nov. 24, 1763, and on a list of Officers in Florida and Warwick, Orange Co., in Capt. Nathaniel Elmer's Company, and was appointed second Lieut., his name being written John Cannadee.

During the Revolution, he served as a private in the 4th Regiment, Orange County, N. Y., Militia, at that time, a resident there; on Sept. 24, 1781, he enlisted in the Company commanded by Anthony Crotser, and was in actual service on the frontiers of Northampton County, Pa., and also was a soldier of the first class in the 3d Company, 4th Battalion, Northampton County Militia, May 14, 1781, and on Sept. 24, same year, enlisted in Capt. Lerk's Company of Militia, in the service of the frontier under Lieut. Christian Shouse.

He afterward removed to the Wyoming Valley, settling at Plains, where he bought a farm, on which he lived until his death, Aug. 20, 1809.

About 1764, he m. Maria Van Vliet, of Orange County, and had issue:

Catharine, b. July 22, 1766, m. Cornelius Cortright, Oct. 1, 1786.

James, bap. Sept. 29, 1768, m. Sarah Abbott.

John, m. Nancy Armstrong.

Elizabeth, b. Apr. 12, 1773, m. James Stark, Nov. 3, 1791.

Thomas, bap. June 22, 1783, m. Elizabeth Schofield, 1801.

ADRIAEN GERRITSEN VAN VLIET, a farmer, came from Utrecht, in Holland, in the ship "Faith," May 24, 1662, with wife and five children, aged 13, 12, 11, 8 and 7. His wife was Agatha Jans Spruyt, of an old family of Kriekenbeck and Opstal, in the province of Utrecht.

He is first named at Kingston, as a witness June 5, 1663, and took the oath of allegiance in 1669. His name, Van Vliet, means in Dutch, "of the stream, or channel," and written in early church records, Van Vlied. He spent his life in Kingston, after his arrival, having had the following children, all born in Holland:

- Machtel, m. Barent Van Borsom, m. 2d. Jan Jacob Stol, in 1684.
- Geertje, m. Gysbert Crom, before 1677.
- Gerrit, m. Pieternelle Swart, before 1681.
- +Jan, m. Judith Hussey, Oct. 4, 1684.

JOHN GORE, the pioneer ancestor of the family, and first of the name to emigrate to New England, came from Waltham Abbey, Sussex, England, where he was born, and died in Roxbury, Mass., June 2, 1657.

He came to Roxbury, with his wife Rhoda, on April 18, 1637, and was one of the few men designated as "mister." He is mentioned in a list of land owners of the year 1643, as owning 143 acres. When he landed at Boston and passed on Boston Neck to Roxbury, "Mrs. Gore was carried by two men, as the ground was wet and swampy. Arriving at Roxbury, the men stopped with their fair burden on a small hill, when Mrs. Gore, who was much fatigued, exclaimed, this is Paradise, and thereafter, the spot was named Paradise Hill."

John Gore was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, 1638, clerk of the Company, 1655, and for many years served as town clerk, the records of Roxbury, now in the city hall, Boston, being in his handwriting, and in that of his son, who succeeded him.

In the church, "Mr. Gore's pew was located by the pulpit stairs;" his homestead was situated on the west side of Tremont Street, just beyond the Providence railroad crossing, extending to Parker's Street, and the old house was torn down in 1876.

Upon his death, his estate inventoried 812 pounds; by his wife Rhoda, he had eleven children, among them,

SAMUEL, born 1652, a carpenter by trade, who served as selectman for several years, and died July 4, 1692. He m. Aug. 28, 1672, Elizabeth, daughter of John and Margaret (Bowen) Weld, son of Capt. Joseph Weld, of Roxbury.

He was Lieutenant in the Military Company of Roxbury in 1689, which took part in the revolution that overthrew the government of Sir Edmund Andros; was one of the original twelve proprietors of the Mashamoquet Purchase, afterward Pomfret, Windham County, Conn., granted them in October, 1687. He had several children, among them,

SAMUEL GORE, born in Roxbury, Oct. 20, 1681. He m. Hannah, a daughter of Moses and Hannah (Chandler) Draper, and granddaughter of James and Miriam (Stansfield) Draper, also of John and Elizabeth (Douglas) Chandler, in 1703, and died May 27, 1756, his wife, July 11, 1741.

Early in the 18th century, subsequently to 1704, with his family, he removed from Roxbury to Norwich, Conn., where he continued to reside until his death. In May, 1721, he was commissioned Captain of the 5th Company, Connecticut Militia, located in Norwich.

Capt. Samuel and Hannah (Draper) Gore had nine children, the sixth, OBADIAH GORE, born at Norwich, July 26, 1714, learned the trade of a blacksmith, and settled in his native town. He m. Hannah, daughter of Thomas and Hannah (Witter) Park, Nov. 4, 1742, who was second in descent from Thomas and Mary (Allyn) Park, and Josiah and Sarah (Crandall) Witter; third from Thomas and Dorothy (Thompson) Park, Robert Allyn, William Witter, and Rev. John and Hannah Crandall; fourth from John Thompson, and Robert Park.

In May, 1761, Obadiah Gore was commissioned Ensign of the 8th Company, of the 3d Regiment, Connecticut Militia; May 1762, promoted Lieutenant of the same Company, and in May, 1766, was commissioned Captain of the same.

He and his father early became members of the Susquehannah Company and as owners of one share each, their names appear as grantees in the Indian deed of July 11, 1754.

He was a member of the Committee of Settlers at Wyoming in June, 1770, so about this time he first came to the Wyoming Valley, as his name frequently appears, and it is evident that up to the time of his death, he was active and prominent in Wyoming affairs.

In May, 1777, and again in May, 1778, he was commissioned by Gov. Jonathan Trumbull, one of the Justices of the Peace for the County of Westmoreland, for the year ensuing.

He resided in Kingston, and in the tax lists for 1776, he was rated at 68 pounds, 18 shillings, for that district. When the battle of Wyoming was fought, Capt. Gore was one of the small company of old men who remained in Forty Fort for its defense, and five of his sons, and two sons-in-law marched out with the patriots to meet the invading British and Indians, and of these seven, five fell on the field of battle.

He died of small pox, Jan. 10, 1779, and his wife died at Sheshequin, Pa., Aug. 14, 1804, in her 84th year. Their issue:

DANIEL GORE, second son of Capt. Obadiah and Hannah (Park) Gore, was born at Norwich, Conn., Mar. 13, 1746, and died at Plains, Luzerne County, Pa., Sept. 3, 1809.

He married Mary, daughter of Adam and Lydia (Tracy) Park, born Aug. 2, 1737, the date of his marriage not being recorded.

In his 17th year (1763), he came to Wyoming with the original settlers, and returning to Norwich, learned the trade of a blacksmith, and came again to Wyoming in the spring of 1769.

He assisted in the erection of Fort Durkee, and was one of its inmates when, in Nov., 1769, it was surrendered to the Pennamites, and the Yankees were required to depart from the Valley.

He returned to Wyoming in 1770, and at the original allotment of lands in the town-plot of Wilkes-Barre, drew lot number 20.

When, in January, 1771, Fort Durkee was captured a second time by the Pennamites, Daniel Gore was one of the Yankees who were taken prisoners, and sent to Philadelphia, where they were confined for several months. Returning to his home in Connecticut, June, 1771, he immediately marched for Wyoming with his brothers, Obadiah, Silas, and Asa, in the Company of Yankees commanded by Capt. Butler, to besiege the Pennamites.

When in 1772, the final distribution of lands in Wilkes-Barre was made, he drew, among other lots, Meadow lot No. 38, and subsequently acquired the adjoining lot, No. 37. These lots contained about sixty-six acres, and lay along the Susquehanna River, on Jacobs Plains, in what is now Plains Township, nearly opposite the site of Forty Fort.

Here, subsequently, he established his home and lived—except when driven away by the Pennamites and Indians—until his death.

Miner (in his History of Wyoming) has recorded the following concerning the part he took in the battle of Wyoming: "Lieut. Daniel Gore was near the right wing, and stood a few rods below Wintermoot's Fort, close to the old road that led up through the valley. Stepping into the road, a ball struck him in the arm, and tearing it from his shirt, he applied a hasty bandage. Just at that moment Capt. (Robert) Durkee stepped into the road at the same place. 'Look out,' cried Lieut. Gore.

At that instant a bullet struck Capt. Durkee in the thigh. When retreat became inevitable, Lieut. Gore endeavored to assist Capt. Durkee from the field, but found it impossible, and Capt. Durkee said, 'Save yourself, Mr. Gore—my fate is sealed.' Lieut. Gore then escaped down the road and leaping a fence about a mile below, lay under a bunch of bushes, and after dark, found his way to the Fort." Escaping from the Valley with other fugitives, he returned to Wilkes-Barre, in August, 1778, and taking command of a small remnant of the Militia company, formed a part of the force at Wyoming, under the command of Col. Zebulon Butler.

He had been commissioned by Governor Trumbull, October, 1775, Lieutenant of the 6th Company, 24th Regiment, Connecticut Militia, which took part in the battle of Wyoming. He continued in the Military service at Wilkes-Barre as Lieutenant until the Sullivan expedition set out for New York, when he accompanied it, returning home with it in October, 1779.

In November, 1787, he was elected Captain of the Upper Wilkes-Barre Company, in the Battalion of Luzerne County Militia, commanded by Lieut. Col. Matthias Hollenback.

He died at his home at Plains, Sept. 3, 1809, and his wife died Apr. 11, 1806; their remains lie in the little graveyard near Port Bowkley, now surrounded by culm piles.

Daniel Gore and his brother, Obadiah, who were blacksmiths, were the first to use Anthracite coal, then called black rock, which they did in their forges when they came to Wyoming in 1769, finding by experiment that when ignited, and fanned by an air blast, it gave greater satisfaction than heating iron by the use of wood, formerly the custom.

To Judge Jesse Fell, however, must be given the credit for first using coal as a fuel for heating in grates, as he and his nephew, Edward Fell, made an open grate, and set it in the fire place of his home, Feb. 11, 1808. He invited several of the neighbors to witness the test, but only two came, for fear of being hoaxed.

He made this entry on the flyleaf of his "Treatise on Masonry," Feb. 11, of Masonry, 5808; Made the "Experment" of burning the common coal of this valley in a grate, in a common fire-place in my house, and find it will answer the purpose of fuel, making a cleaner and better fire at less expense, than burning wood in the common way.

THE ABBOTT, SEARLE, FULLER, MOULTON AND ALLIED FAMILIES.

There were several families by the name of Abbott who came to New England at a very early day, all supposed to be more or less distantly related, but the connection has never been proven. The compiler of the Abbott family of Andover, says, "my opinion, but I have no authority for it, is that the early Abbots of Andover and other places were all descended from Sir Thomas Abbott, of Easington, England, who flourished early in the sixteenth century." He also says:

"GEORGE ABBOTT, the venerable ancestor of a numerous progeny, was born in England, 1615, who emigrated from Yorkshire in 1637, coming over in the same ship with his future wife, and lived several years at Roxbury. In 1643 he went to Andover, Mass., there becoming one of the first settlers and original proprietors, his house being a garrison to protect the settlers from attacks by the Indians, used as such during his life, and for many years after his death, Dec. 24, 1681, O. S., aged 66 years. He married Hannah, dau. of William and Annis Chandler, Dec. 12, 1646, and with Christian submission, they endured their trials, dangers, and privations, of which they had a large share; they were industrious, economical, sober, pious and respected, Puritans in faith, and brought up a family of thirteen children well, trained them in the way they should go, from which they did not depart." He made his will Dec. 12, 1681, proved Mar. 28, 1682, in which he pays a fine tribute to his wife, who after his death, m. Rev. JOHN ABBOTT, born Sept. 27, 1741, at Hampton, Windham County, Conn., married at Hampton, (parish of Canada), Nov. 4, 1762, Alice Fuller, a daughter of Stephen Fuller, Sen., and coming to the Wyoming Valley early in March, 1772, he soon afterward executed a "settlers" bond. Having been admitted a proprietor in Wilkes-Barre, he participated in the distribution of lots, April, 1772, being allotted lot No. 35 in the town plot, lot No. 48 in the first division, lot No. 10 in the third division and lot No. 2 in the fourth division. He first lived in the Fort or blockhouse at Wilkes-Barre until 1774, when, having erected a house on one of his lots in what is now Plains Township, opposite Forty-Fort, he removed there. With his brother-in-law, Capt. Stephen Fuller, he erected the first dwelling in Wilkes-Barre, on the south-west corner of Main and Northampton Streets, which then, in 1772, was a "sterile plain covered with pitch pine and scrub oak." He took part in the battle of Wyoming, July 3, 1778, as a private in the 6th, or upper Wilkes-Barre Company, of the 24th Regiment, Connecticut Militia, commanded by Capt. Resin Geer; escaping from the field of battle in the general rout, he waded through the shallow water of the Susquehanna, to Monoconock Island; crossing the Island, being unable to swim, he was aided over the deep channel of the river by his neighbor and fellow soldier, George Cooper, also fleeing from the scene of carnage and desolation. He took his family down the river to Sunbury, and leaving them there, joined the detachment of Militia under the command of Lieut. Col. Zebulon Butler, on August 4th, 1778.

Stone says (History of Wyoming) that "Mr. Abbott found his house and barn had been burnt, his cattle slaughtered, or driven away, and his fields ravaged, the gleanings only remaining. These he attempted to gather (about the middle of August) and while in the field with Isaac Williams, a youth of eighteen, they were shot by a party of Indians, who stole upon them unawares, scalped and left dead upon the spot."

His widow, with nine small children, being now entirely destitute, was compelled to seek her way to Hampton, Connecticut, a distance of more than three hundred miles—on foot, penniless, heart broken, and dependent on charity for subsistence. The journey was safely made, and with her family, she remained for several years, until the troubles in Wyoming were over, and her sons grown up, when she returned to the Valley, successfully reclaimed the estate of her husband, upon which she settled."

On Sept. 20, 1782, her brother, Capt. Stephen Fuller, was appointed administrator of the estate of John Abbott, deceased.

Alice Fuller, born Feb. 20, 1741, wife of John Abbott, was a daughter of Stephen and Hannah (Moulton) Fuller; 2d in descent from Thomas and Martha (Durgy) Fuller, and Robert and Hannah (Grove) Moulton; 3d, from Lieut. Abigail Searle, July 14, 1799, d. at Plains, Pa., July 22, 1853, was one of the nine children with whom his widowed mother made her way back to Connecticut after the tragic death of the father at the hands of the savages on his farm at Plains, in August, 1778.

The family remained there until 1798, when Stephen Abbott, accompanied by his cousin, Philip Abbott, their families and several others, returned to his father's home at Plains, where he resided until his death. On Oct. 20, 1801, he and his brother Charles purchased the estate of their father from their mother, Alice Fuller Gardner, and their sisters, Celinda Taylor, Lydia Swetland and Sarah Kennedy.

Here he successfully engaged in farming, and later in life, in selling coal from his property, which provided amply for all his needs.

His wife died June 2, 1842, after which he married Sarah, the daughter of Col. Nathan Dennison, and widow of Thomas Ferrier.

Abigail Searle, born June 25, 1779, wife of Stephen Abbott, was the daughter of William and Philene (Frink) Searle, and granddaughter of Constant Searle, who was killed in the battle of Wyoming, his wife being Hannah Miner, and of Andrew and Abigail (Billings) Frink; 3d in descent from Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Kinnecutt) Searle, Simeon and Hannah (Wheeler) Miner, Samuel and Margaret (Wheeler) Frink, and Increase and Hannah (Hewitt) Billings; 4th from Nathaniel and Sarah Jeremiah and Mary (Wainwright) Shepard, William Billings, Daniel and Paltiah (Elderkin) Comstock, Thomas and Hannah (Palmer) Hewitt, and Edmund and Ellen Fanning; 6th from John and Ann (Churchman) Rogers, William and Elizabeth (Alden) Pabodie, Daniel and Joanna Shepardson, John Luther, Thomas and Grace (Palmer) Miner, James and Joanna (Greenslade) Avery, Nicholas Stevens, Thomas Lincoln, "the miller," Thomas and Mary Wheeler, Thomas and Dorothy (Thompson) Park, Capt. John and Hannah (Lake) Gallup, John and Esther Prentice, John and Mary Frink, Rev. Thomas and Margaret (Borodale) Shepard, Francis and Phillipa Wainwright, William Billings, William and Elizabeth Comstock, John Elderkin, Walter and Rebecca (Short) Palmer; 7th from Thomas Rogers, of the "Mayflower," Hugh Churchman, John and Priscilla (Mullins) Alden, of the "Mayflower," Walter Palmer, Christopher Avery, Robert Park, John and Alice Thompson, John and Margaret (Read) Lake, Valentine and Alice Prentice, and Francis Wainwright, Senior; 8th from William Mullins, or properly, Molines, a French Huguenot, who came over with the Pilgrims from England, on the Mayflower.

Many of these ancestors of Abigail Searle were prominent in the early days of New England, taking part in the Colonial wars, in the government in various capacities, and all did their share of the hard task necessary to establish our country as it now is, so today, their descendants are enjoying the fruits of their labors and hardships.

James and his brother, Philip Abbott, who were nephews of John Abbott, killed by the Indians in 1778, were pioneer settlers at Scranton, the history of which says "James Abbott, then of Wilkes-Barre, but formerly of Windham, Conn., bought lot No. 30, and soon after lot No. 40, and with his brother Philip, were for several years among the most active and enterprising men in the township.

Philip Abbott built a grist mill on Roaring Brook in 1788, the first settlement of the kind in the vicinity. In October, his brother James joined him in the enterprise, and later, in the spring of 1789, Reuben Taylor was admitted to partnership. They also owned and operated the first saw mill there. Philip Abbott built his house in Scranton in 1788, in which year Reuben Taylor built the second house there."

The grist mill built and owned by Philip and James Abbott was the first industry established in Scranton.
