These are the "ancestral roots" of what still, in fact, appears to be a failed history of the family of my paternal grandfather. (A.S. 1)

A fuller history of these days may be a long time in the making. This, then, is my opportunity to thank those who have made my research so rewarding.

The history of the past of Glen Dhu is best known from the Bible and family notes and tradition, and a continual research in churches, registry offices, cemeteries, libraries and family records.

D O W s

The first impetus towards this research came from Herbert Dow of Regina who had decided to research his parents' Scottish ancestry approximately with a family book. He asked my father, Robert George Dow, to help him. I had inherited information from the time he was in the military. George, having his career so much as he could from the military, the library and the Registry Office, and his family's history together with his own family, he was able to help me in my research, but being the antecedents and descendants of

These are the "position charts" of what will, in time, I hope, be a fuller history of the family of my paternal grandmother. [K.R.B.]

AUTHOR'S FORWARD

A fuller history of these Dows may be a long time in the writing. This, then, is my opportunity to thank all those who have made my avocation so rewarding.

The history of the Dows of Glen Dhu is based upon family Bibles and family pride and tradition, and additional research in archives, registry offices, cemeteries, libraries and family records.

The first impetus towards this research came from Herbert Dow of Regina who had decided to honour his parents' fiftieth wedding anniversary with a Memory Book. He asked my father, Robert George Barclay, to visit Whitby and collect information from the tombstones in the Union Cemetery. George, having discovered as much as he could from the cemetery, the library and the Registry Office, sent his findings to Regina together with his memories of aunts, uncles, cousins and servants of the Glen Dhu family. His success at "chasing the bull" was limited, but perhaps in time some bovine genealogist will tell us which prize bull it was that William Dow imported from Scotland.

Inheriting George's papers and pictures in 1969, I cast about for additional information and came upon a chart prepared by George Macgillivray of Thunder Bay. In hot pursuit of Macgillivray kin, George gathered Dow information by the way and gave it to his immediate cousins. One of these, Clara Farrell Brooke, gave me the chart in the early days of my searching and has continued to inspire, encourage and support my work.

So many cousins have helped that this can be only a partial list of those who have given me continuing financial, factual and moral support: Herbert Dow and his sister Nora Fraser of Saskatoon, George Macgillivray and Clara Brooke; John Boynton of Georgeville Quebec; Mabel Coleman of Rochester New York and the late Margaret Nayler of Victoria, David Fensom of New Brunswick, Dr. Bill Keith of Toronto, Dr. Haddow Keith of Rochester Minnesota, and Bob Keith 'The Ontario Gardener'; Georgie Milne Haugen and Jean Taylor of Vancouver Island, Bess Fry of Toronto and Dee Holdaway of Edmonton, Donald and Laura Milne of Maberley Ontario; Mae McGrandle of Toronto and Nora Hogg and her daughters of Summerland B.C.; the late Peggy Steadman and Sheelin Steadman Sennit of Norfolk England; Liz Dow Delahey of Saskatoon, Bill and Dev Hurlburt and John and Kim Barclay of Edmonton; the late Ben Fleming of Ottawa; Marion Nichols of Port Hope. The list cannot end without my thanks to my late aunts Isabel, Marjorie and Helena who were, of course, my richest source of family lore; and to my Uncle Barc, the youngest of my father's family, who once said, "I remember very little of Whitby, and what I remember had best be left unsaid!"; nevertheless he parted with a few items of information and lots of encouragement.

I cannot speak too highly of the librarians and archivists in my life. With endless patience the Peterborough librarians Heather Davis, Jean Hayes and the rest, have answered my questions and listened to my progress reports, from my joyous shriek of delight at finding my first census record. Whitby Library has been another constant resource, as has the Metro Toronto Library.

Archivists of the PAC, Ontario Archives, Century Village Lang, Peterborough County, Uxbridge Museum, St. Andrew's Church Whitby, Grampian Region and Elgin County in Scotland, Anglican and Roman Catholic Archives in Toronto, Knox College, Trent University, Queen's University — to name but a few — have added immeasurably to my store of knowledge. In particular I must give public thanks to Brian Winter of the Whitby Archives, who goes about with the Dow family names engraved on his heart and sends me word of every single entry that he encounters.

For the O.G.S. Anniversary Library collection deadline, these charts are a promissory note for a proper Dow history to follow (D.V.) as soon as time and strength permit. In it will be the pictures which my husband, Robert Bowley, has copied with skill and patience from an incredibly varied collection of originals, in every state of preservation, loaned to me by my family.

I have found descendants of parts of these families and have met several members of both. I am still seeking. Through documents, the families of William Dow Peck (born and died in California) and of Isabella Miller Dow (Dunn, Tice, Ferguson and Mathers, also in California).

I have been extremely fortunate to have had the help of several excellent professional researchers in the States of Iowa, Illinois, Washington and California, as well as in Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Glasgow and Inverness in Scotland.

EXPLANATION

1. The Numbering System

Beginning with the children of William and Margaret Dow my numbers go "from left to right" so to speak. Their children are #101 to #111, and each of this generation is the head of a family group. Their children begin at #201 and are spread from left to right across the sheets. Under them their children may be all listed vertically, or perhaps from left to right also depending upon the number of names. The next generation, I discovered, came to over a hundred souls so they are listed as #3001, etc. At the seventh generation I returned to the smaller number of 701.

Until Hallowe'en of this year the numbers ran consecutively from Page 1. Names which arrived on my desk from November first on were added to the appropriate Page and given numbers following those on Page 35 (or the last one in that generation).

2. The Index lists surnames only.

3. Murray.

I have no documentary proof that the family I have recorded is actually that of Margaret Dow Murray's son James, and so far I have found no descendants with whom to correspond. Other evidence was so strong, however, that I felt I should include the listings. Anyone who can find a marriage record for James Murray and Jane Forrest will be doing me a great favour.

4. Wallace.

Elspet Dow Wallace appears to have had no grandchildren. The documentary links in this case do exist.

5. Foote, Miller.

I have found descendants of parts of these families and have met several members of each. I am still seeking, through documents, the families of William Dow Foote (Hazen and Hood in California) and of Isabella Miller Dun (Dunn, Titus, Ferguson and Selhorn, also in California).

6. I have been extremely fortunate to have had the help of several excellent professional researchers in the States of Iowa, Illinois, Washington and California, as well as in Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Elgin and Inverness in Scotland.
