oil on panel
H: 5 W: 4 1/2

Treatment

1. The upper varnish was removed with toluene.
2. A layer of surface dirt was reduced with dilute ammonium hydroxide. This was limited because many areas of the crackled and possibly pigmented upper layer were sensitive and further cleaning seemed too uncertain.
3. The painting was coated with Acryloid B-72.
4. Minor inpainting was done with polyvinyl acetate and pigment.

Cost of treatment.....$150.

Treatment

1. Surface dirt was removed with dilute ammonium hydroxide.
2. Areas of insecurity were consolidated with wax-resin. This was in the upper left and left edge extending to the lower left corner. These are areas of extensive previous restoration with several layers of filling and retouching. Much of the old retouching seems to extend well over original design paint.
3. Losses were inpainted and previous retouching was adjusted with polyvinyl acetate and pigment.
4. Final varnish of Regalrez 1094.

Treatment

1. The original canvas is reinforced with a wax-resin type adhesive which seems to be very high in the resin part. Distortion of the plane was present along two prominent crackle lines and this distortion was reduced with heat and cooling under pressure.
2. A heavy upper varnish was removed with toluene. The most conspicuous retouching and some additional varnish were removed with acetone.
3. The painting was coated with Acryloid B-72.

Physician and Patient by Heerschop 1674
oil on oak panel

Treatment

1. A heavy varnish with drips and some toning was removed with acetone. This varnish was somewhat slowly soluble and in thicker areas was softened and thinned with a scalpal. This also removed areas of previous retouching.
2. The painting was coated with Acryloid B-72.
3. Losses were inpainted with polyvinyl acetate and pigment.
4. Final varnish of Regalrez 1094.

STATEMENT

Still Life by Galle 1872
oil on canvas
H: 21 1/4 W: 25 1/2

Treatment

1. Surface dirt was removed with mineral spirits. Further cleaning was tested but there is extensive old retouching soluble in toluene but this is not easily distinguished by solubility from paint in many areas which is part of the upper design layer. This seems to include the signature but may be the reinforcing of a lower signature. The upper design layer also includes many irregularities including conspicuous pitting and inclusions. It is not at all clear how much of the visible design is earlier than the obvious retouching of damage so no more cleaning was done. In several areas which were clearly retouching small windows were opened to an underlying, much less easily soluble paint of a different design. A CT scan was done and it clearly shows an underlying still life different from that which is visible.
2. The painting was coated with Acryloid B-72 and the losses inpainted with polyvinyl acetate and pigment.
3. Final varnish of Golden MSA satin varnish.

Cost of treatment.....$300
