Dear Alfred:

Thank you for your note of December 13. Please do not worry about your comments, that you seemed to be concerned about, which you made on the way home. I think they are quite to the point and will, of course, be promptly forgotten.

We always enjoy having you and hope to get to Milwaukee to look at stamps and paintings. I am still quite interested in getting further lots of your material and hope it will still all be available at that time.

With best wishes for the Holiday Season, I am

Dear Jo Anne:

How delightful to get 2 letters from you the same day. Thank you for your thoughtfulness.

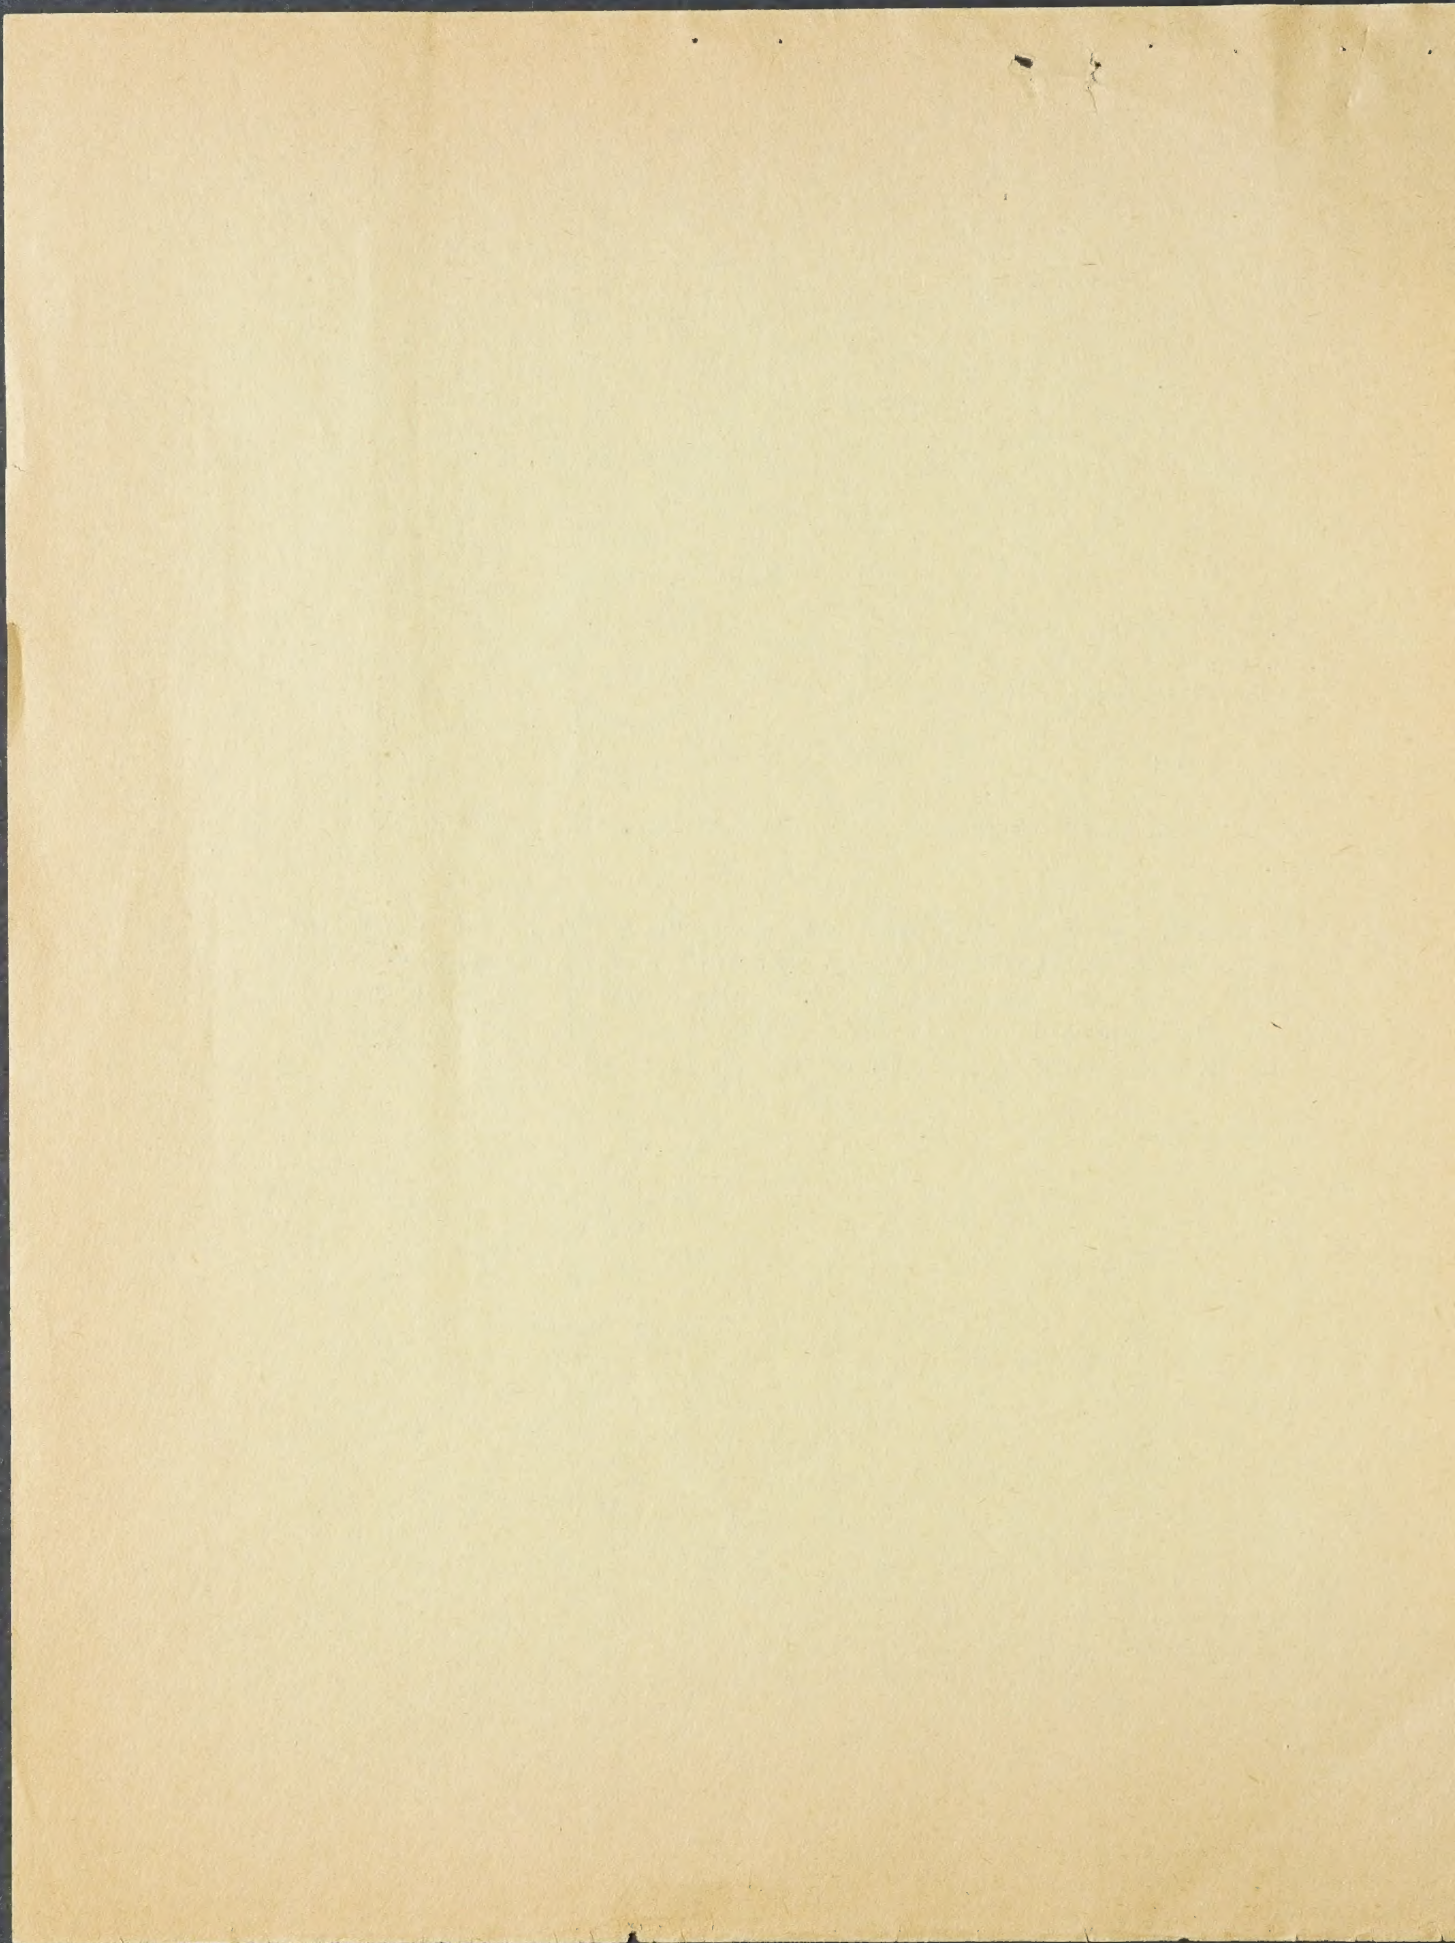

As you know, I would be delighted to sell you a painting or 2, but it is so difficult to decide about paintings from photographs, and I would much rather let you pick personally from somewhere around 100. Surely sometime during the next year, you and Ernst will be in the mid-west and then I very much hope that you would be our guest at least for a day and, if possible, for a quiet weekend.

Fond regards to you and Ernst.

As always,

Alfred Bader

Dear Alfred,

Thank you for your very nice letter which has just arrived. We're glad that your lectures/business sometimes bring you into our area.

Do not worry about your comments. We wish that we could assess people as rapidly and accurately. You should hear our children on the subject of 'the person involved.' And yet there is another side of the coin, too. I do not think that I would be collecting anything had it not been for her urging. It is pleasant to have a hobby to study now that Ernst has retired and is pursuing his several ^{hobbies}.

Catching up on my year's correspondence I found an unsent letter I wrote to you in the spring. The day I asked Ernst's secretary to mail it on her way out. I couldn't find my address book! Since all of it is still valid, I'll send it along belatedly with the hope that we may have the opportunity to be in your area next year.

(over)

We shall be off to St. Maarten January 19th until March 30th.

I am enjoying the Catalog which you brought this time and find it good bedtime
reading to read about a painting or two.

Best wishes to all four of you.

Dear Alfred,

Ernst and I were delighted to have you visit us, even if briefly.

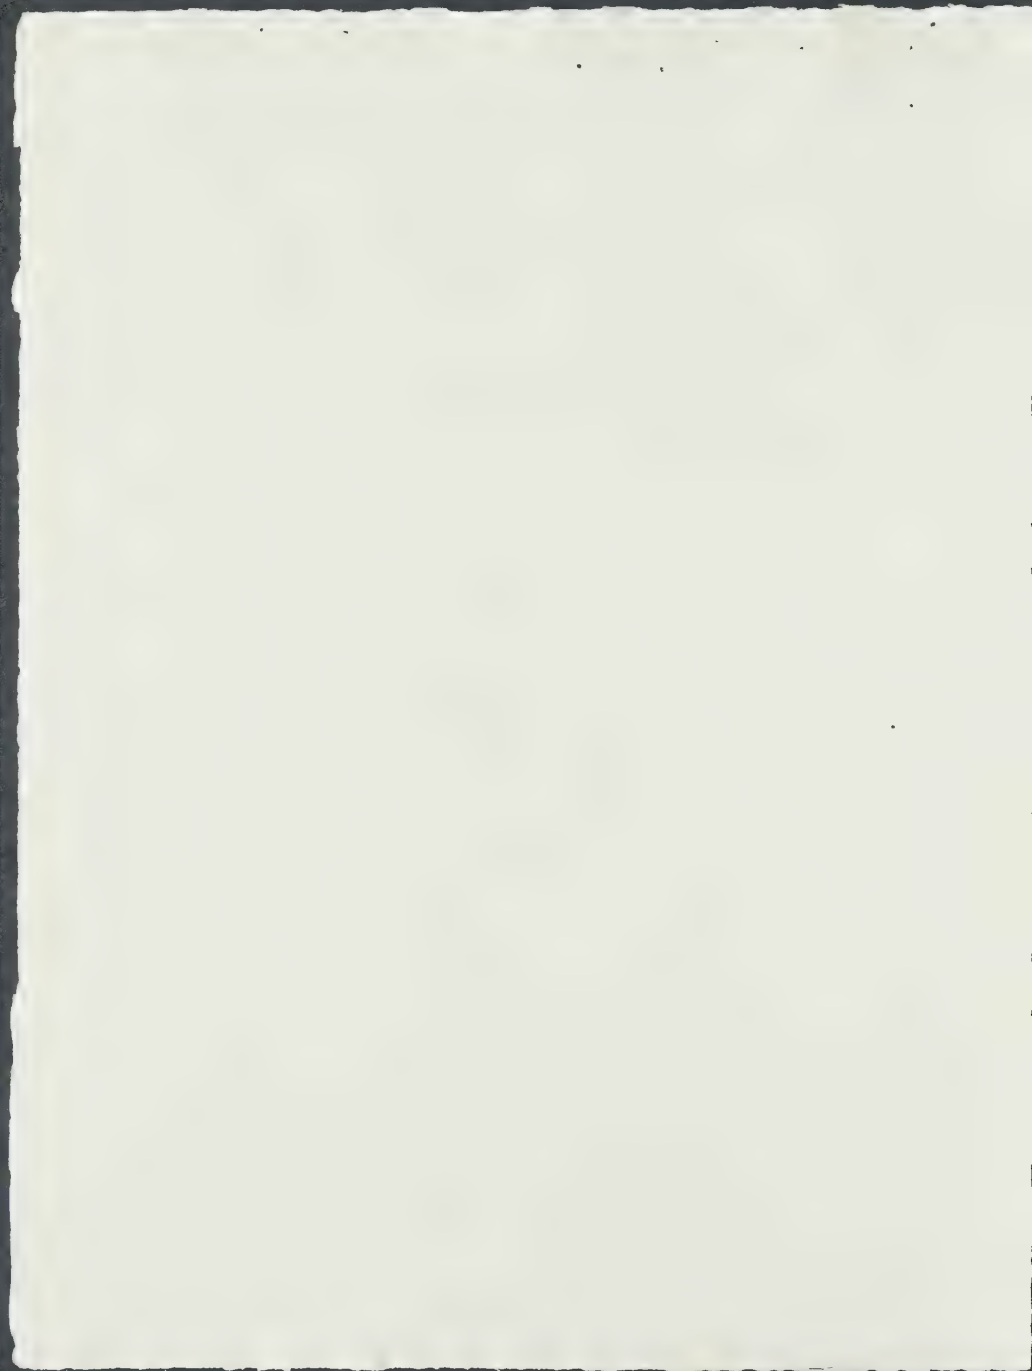

You brought, perhaps unknowingly, much encouragement to both of us - to Ernst to busy himself with publishing, to me to pursue my collecting in its modest way, and to both of us to acquire some better paintings.

Ernst will write to you directly about the stamps. I wish that I had had time to discuss the porcelain collection of which you spoke. While I have limited myself mostly to 18th c English. I could be tempted by other pieces

As for paintings I hope that you may have a small painting that I may give Ernst
on some occasion - his birthday (Sept 23rd) Christmas, or our wedding anniversary (Feb 25.)
He has expressed an interest, as you know, in the Dutch style, in still life paintings and in ship paintings. Would you please let me know if such a painting is available at not too great a price.

I do not know if we shall be able to get to Milwaukee this year. Perhaps Ernst can work something out with you.

Special thanks for the book containing selections from your collection. I am looking forward to browsing through it.

Please give my best wishes to Lanny

Dear Alfred:

I found your letter of July 14 here on my return from St. Maarten.

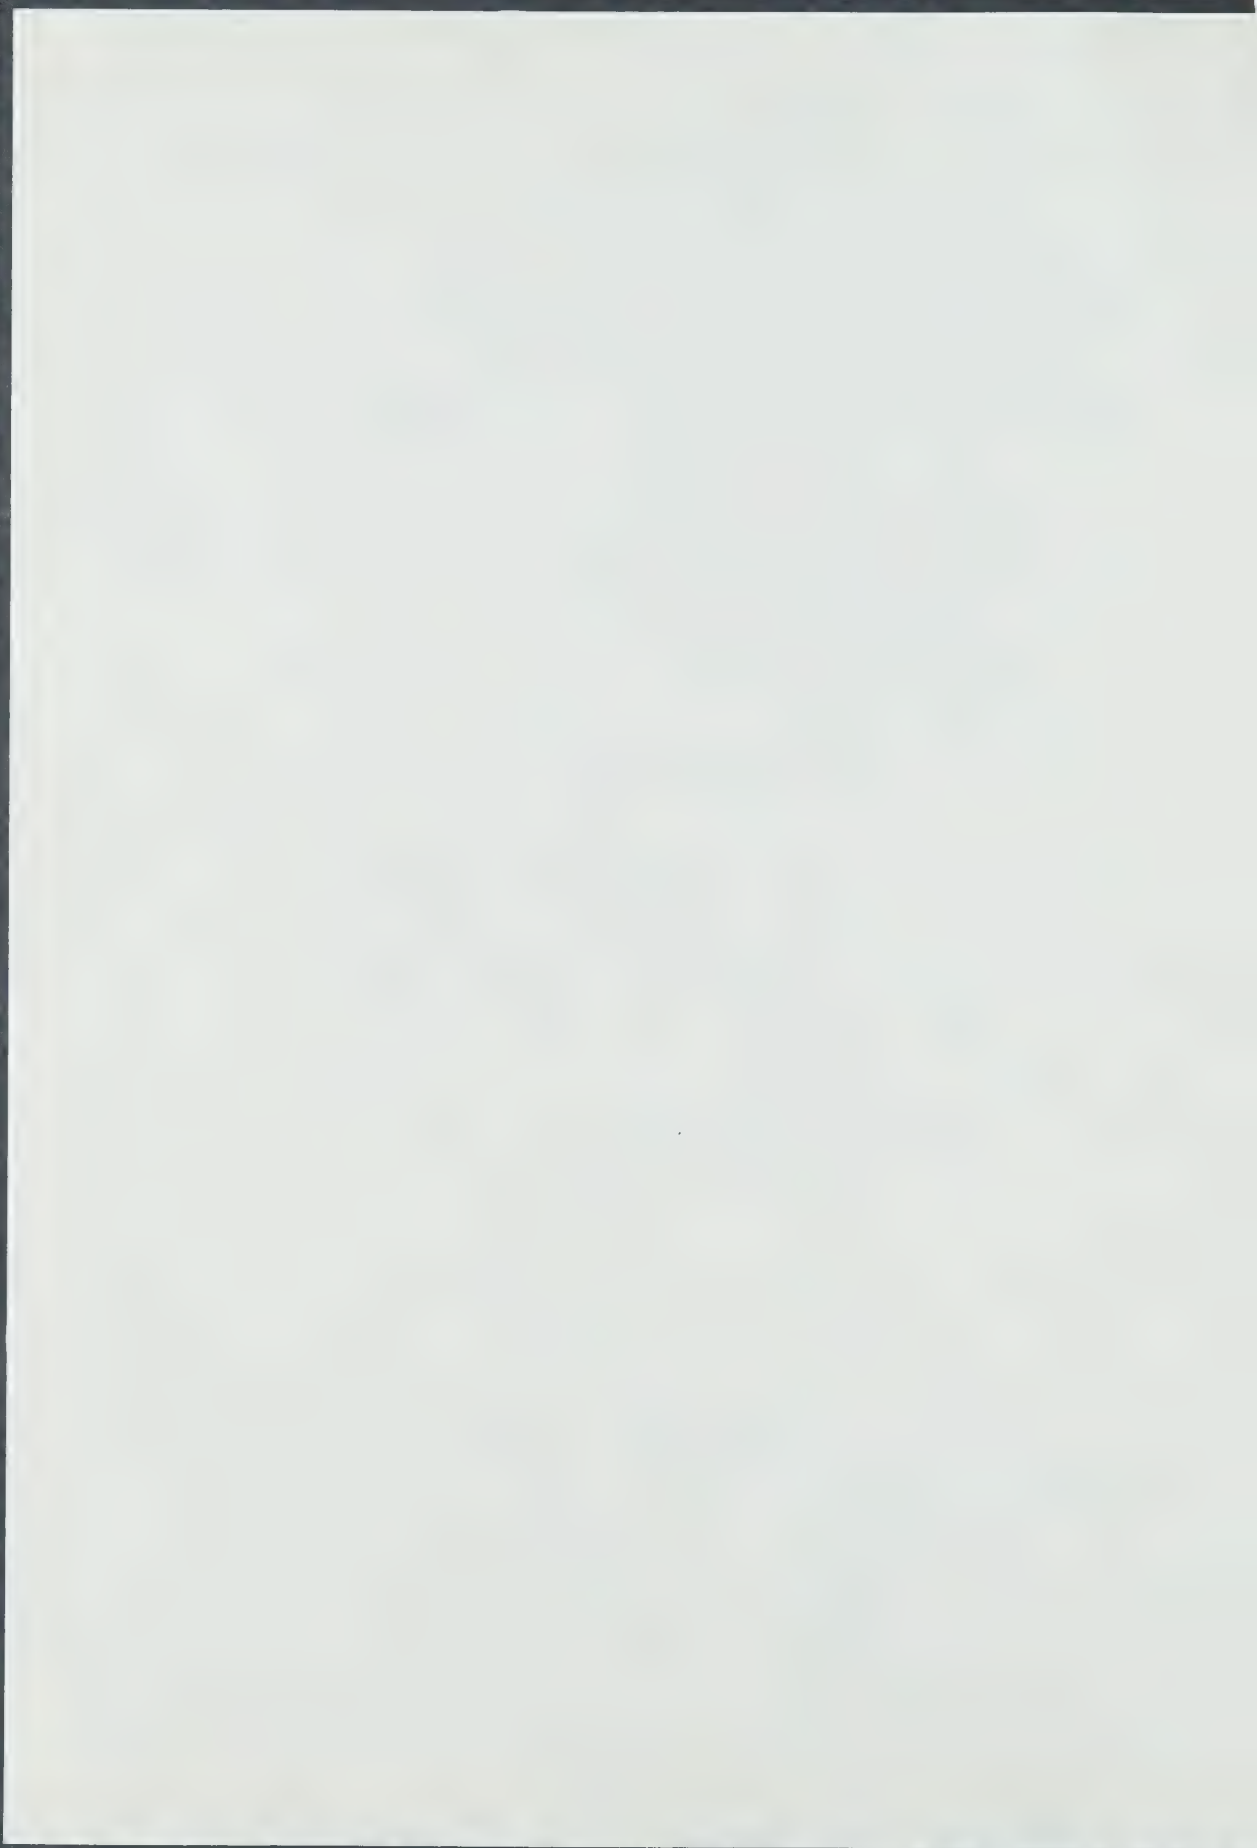

As far as any visit to Milwaukee is concerned, our plans for the fall are still uncertain, but I have accepted two lecture tours for the A. C. S. - one through Kansas and Arkansas in October and one in Ohio in December. Meanwhile we leave tomorrow for two weeks at Lake George.

As soon as I know our schedule more precisely I shall let you know.

Best regards.

Dear Admiral Hoffmann: Re: 29-4-1(ccccc)

Please accept my sincere thanks for the thoughtfulness of your letter of February 13.

It seems as unbelievable to me as it obviously does to you, for the country to spend billions of dollars to construct the St. Lawrence Seaway, only then not to have any ships from the major ports of Europe to the Seaway ports.

That the state of New York has always objected to the Seaway, not for reasons of ecology but for commercial reasons, has of course been clear all along.

Please guide me what we can do to correct this very serious situation. One of the great assets of Milwaukee to companies like Aldrich has been the accessibility to shipping to and from our major foreign customers and suppliers and I would like to do everything possible to help you in your efforts. Please guide me. I remain

Dr. Alfred Bader

Dear Dr. Bader:

In response to my conversation with Mr. Marvin Ouesterman this date, I am appending a copy of a mailgram forwarded to the Secretary of Commerce concerning the withdrawal of Ernst Russ shipping service from the Great Lakes this navigational season. This is an extremely serious loss to the Port of Milwaukee and all Great Lakes maritime interests, and therefore has top priority on our agenda. We are seriously pursuing any alternative that will fill this vacuum, not only U.S. shipping lines, but other foreign shipping lines such as Manchester Liners Ltd., from the United Kingdom and Polish Ocean Lines from Poland.

I am also appending a copy of a recent release from the Governor of New York concerning his position with respect to an extended navigation season on the Great Lakes/St. Lawrence Seaway. As you may be aware, the Corps of Engineers has conducted extensive tests and evaluation on an extended winter navigation season on the Great Lakes/St. Lawrence waterway. In fact, we now have year-round navigation on the upper four lakes. The Soo Locks for example, have been operating the past two years year-round without significant environmental impact. There is little doubt in my mind that the Great Lakes/St. Lawrence Seaway will be open for eleven months of navigation in time. The question is when. Up to this point a very vocal well-organized and intransigent upstate New York environmental group has effectively blocked the Corps of Engineers from further progress. I will not go into detail at this time, but the Corps, in my opinion, has conclusively proven that the environmental impact and quantity of water flow through the St. Lawrence waterway will not be significantly affected by thorough application of mathematical/computer models, large scale hydraulic ice models and the practical experience of similar and larger projects now in operation in the St. Clair and St. Mary's rivers. Ostensibly upstate New Yorkers have objected and effectively precluded tests scheduled for the St. Lawrence waterway this winter, for ecological reasons despite approval by the United States Congress and an appropriation of $2.3 million to do the job. The real reason however, comes out in Governor Carey's appended statement: that is, potential revenue losses to the railroad industry, the trucking industry, the Port Authority of New York, and concerned winter tourist trade upstate. At least I give the Governor credit for being candid.

BOARD OF HARBOR COMMISSIONERS

The extended navigation season is a very complex problem that cannot adequately be covered in a letter such as this. Thus at a time and place of your convenience, I would like to meet with you to discuss these subjects and other items of mutual interest to the Port of Milwaukee and Aldrich Chemical Company. I strongly feel that the public Port of Milwaukee should be oriented towards the interest of greater Milwaukee industry and business, and your comments and opinions would be highly valued.

Dear Professor Hauser:

Thank you so much for your thoughtful letter of March 22.

We realized just a little while ago that one number from the west coast was not sufficient so we now have two numbers, namely 415-451-6460 and 451-6461.

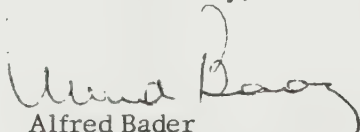

Our California office used to close at 4:00 P. M. and beginning April 4, we will have a girl here until 6:30 P. M. our time, which is 4:30 P. M. your time, just to receive orders from the west.

I am certain that as our girls get to know our customers in the west, placing orders here will be just as easy as it was to San Leandro.

Regarding your most serious complaint, that you would trust us more if we had a few old master nudes on our covers, let me just tell you that we did so once and I enclose a copy of that issue. We got quite a few very nasty comments; one lady in Boston sent me a two page very irate letter asking whether we are selling chemicals or pornography. I certainly wish that I had some such pornography by Rembrandt; it is just so hard to please everyone.

With many thanks for your understanding and help, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

Dear Dr. and Mrs. Bader,

Professor Isabelle Sprague of the Biology Department, in her Founder's Day address two days ago, referred to the College's "Northwest Alumnae Club," one of the earliest. Everybody laughed because the territory included in this early club was Chicago and the "land to the north," not exactly what we now think of as northwest territory, but her reference was interesting.

Apparently the Mount Holyoke graduates in this area were extremely concerned about keeping up-to-date with advancing scientific theories in the late 1800's. They wrote their former science professors long lists of questions about Darwin and the others, begging them to respond to the "Northwest Club" with some ideas about what they "really thought" about evolutionism. Professor Sprague mentioned this because these science professors answered, and they did so in detail. This correspondence now sheds great light on the teaching of science at Mount Holyoke in the last century and on the science faculty members themselves, and it is clear that Mount Holyoke College has been at the forefront of scientific knowledge for decades. (I think it is also clear that the Mount Holyoke graduates in Chicago-Wisconsin area were an intellectually lively bunch, don't you?)

Coming from Wisconsin myself (born and raised in Delavan, attended Milwaukee Downer Seminary in the late 40's) I am interested in the Wisconsin-Mount Holyoke connections, which are not as great, quantitatively at least, as the Wisconsin-Smith and Wellesley connections. Mount Holyoke traditionally gets relatively few students from Milwaukee and relatively little support. I hope this will change someday.

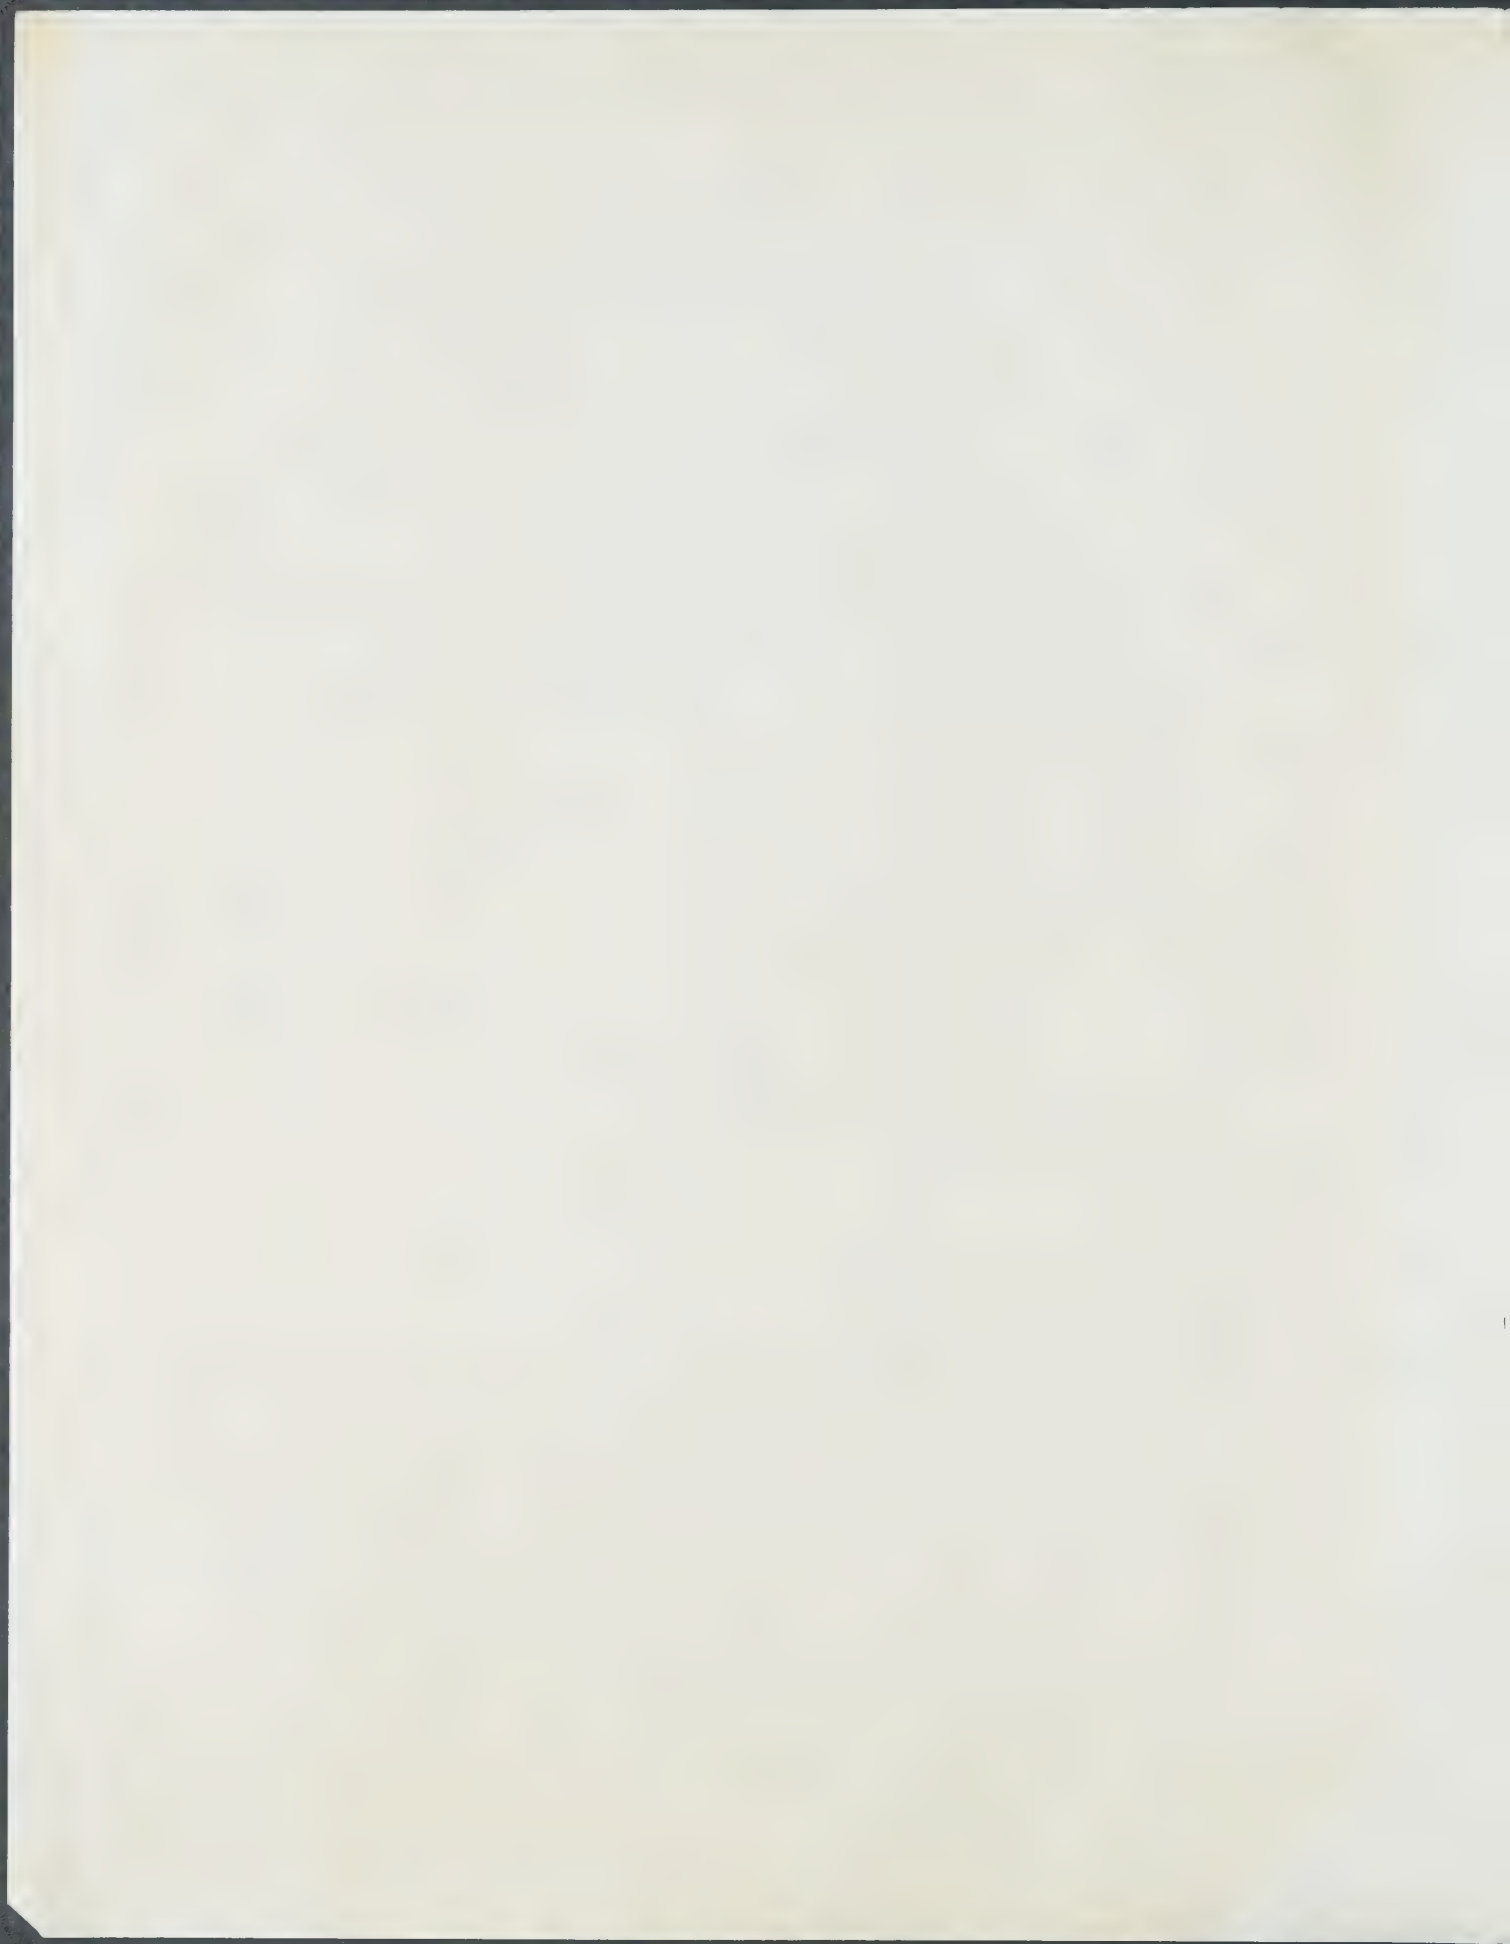

You are a wonderful exception to this rule. Your appreciation of Anna Jane Harrison and the Mount Holyoke Art Museum is clear, and it boosts our spirits greatly. Thank you for your continuing generosity. I hope our paths will cross here or in Wisconsin.

With very best wishes to you both,

Dear Alf:

I wish to thank you for writing to Principal Watts with regard to my daughter, Johanne. The reply I received from Principal Watts was very informative and appreciated. Early in January my daughter wrote to the Admissions Office as suggested by Dr. Watts and requested an application for admission. She recently received a very courteous and encouraging letter and an application form from D. W. Einarson, M.D., Admissions Officer of the Faculty of Medicine.

In spite of the fact that she will have just completed a two-year Surgeon's Assistant Program from the University of North Carolina she is still very interested in applying to the medical school at Queens and has completed her application, etc. However, she will not be able to take the MCAT until April. Although she will do well on any medical or general information questions, she is concerned about the organic chemistry and physics sections of the test since she has not used these subjects since college. However, I hope that her 4-1/2 years in multiple sclerosis research at Northwestern University Medical School and her Surgeon's Assistant training will be given ample consideration by the selection committee.

Again I wish to thank you for intervening on my daughter's behalf. It was good to see you again at the reunion. Whenever you come to Oak Ridge or Knoxville please call me (615) 574-4489 (work) or (615) 483-1495 (home).

Dear Principal Watts:

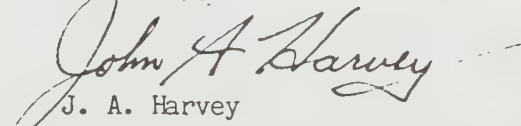

I wish to thank you for your very informative letter of January 9, 1981 with regard to my daughter. As you undoubtedly learned from Dr. Alfred Bader, I was very surprised eight years ago when my daughter received such a curt and negative response to her inquiry.

Every year the Alumni Review features an article on the children of graduates entering Queens for their education. I have many fond memories of my years at Queens. Also, I have always felt that the education I received at Queens was excellent and a deciding factor in my admission to graduate school at MIT. To be informed in 1972 that an application from my daughter would not even be considered since she was not a Canadian citizen seemed very unreasonable to me. Although many of us have become US citizens because of employment opportunities, we still maintain strong ties with Canada.

Early in January my daughter wrote to the Admissions Office as you suggested. She has received a most courteous and encouraging letter from Dr. D. W. Einarson and an application form for admission to the medical school. She will return the application and supporting material very soon. However, she will not be able to take the MCAT until April. I hope that the admissions committee will give ample consideration to her 4-1/2 years in multiple sclerosis research at Northwestern University Medical School and her participation in a two-year Surgeon's Assistant Program at the University of North Carolina.

Thank you again for your consideration for which I am most appreciative.

The Aldrich Chemical Company Scholarship - Change in Terms

- The present terms do not make it clear that the recipient must return to Queen's the following year. The Senate, at its meeting on December 18, 1980, on the recommendation of the Faculty of Arts and Science, approved the following modification of the terms, subject to the ratification of the Board of Trustees:

The Aldrich Chemical Company Scholarship

Established by A.R. Bader, M.Sc. (Queen's), Ph.D. (Harvard). Awarded annually to the student making the highest standing in Chemistry 280 or 288. The award is open to students in Arts and Science and in the Engineering Chemistry (B) program in Applied Science, provided they register the following session in the Faculty of Arts and Science or in Engineering Chemistry (B).
Value: $180.

The BP Canada Bursary

- In 1979, the BP Canada established a bursary program at the University. The terms were approved by the Senate and the Board of Trustees providing for awards on the basis of satisfactory academic standing and financial need with preference given to students in Chemical Engineering.

Dear Dr. Bader:

Firstly, I wish to thank you very much for the generous grant which will be used to maximum advantage for the support of graduate students. We intend to acknowledge your aid on forthcoming papers to which this support is applied, assuming that you have no objections.

The only comment that I can make about our experience with TBSDI is that we have stored solutions of it prepared according to Detty for several months without noticeable loss of reactivity. When talking with you I did not realize that the reagent had not been isolated by my people.

Please find enclosed data on the preparation of both the 1 and 2 triethylsilyloxybutadiene systems. These substances work very well in the Diels-Alder reaction and could prove to be useful alternatives to the "Danishefsky-Diene" in cases of steric congestion.

Next time that you visit Rochester, we'll go to a small French place I know that should provide an enjoyable lunch for us. We all hope to see more of you since your son will be attending RIT in the fall.

Dear Professor Eliel:

I am sorry that a trip to England has delayed my thanking you for your thoughtful letter of July 30 regarding your collection of compounds for our library of rare chemicals.

One of the most difficult and important commandments in the Bible is the commandment in Leviticus 19, "You shall not put a stumbling block before the blind." Not that you are blind, but I must tell you that when I picked the sum of $1,000 as a fair price for your collection of research samples, it wasn't particularly based on the fact that there were 370 compounds, but rather the fact that many of the compounds are very interesting and they came from Professor Eliel. Had I known that there would only be 333 instead of 370 compounds, I would still have offered a thousand dollars, and so it would seem unfair to me to accept your kind offer to reduce the price to $900. I do hope that you will understand.

When Don Frank visits your department next, probably next month, he will visit with you and, if convenient, will offer to take the collection with him in his car and then ship them from his office in Metuchen to Milwaukee. He will bring a check for $1,000 made out to you with him.

Please just make sure that the bottles are well closed and labeled unambiguously. There is no need to have the chemical name on the label, but the correct structure is essential.

Dear Harold:

I am sorry that a trip to England has delayed my thanking you for your kind letter of August 4.

I would like to visit Michigan State and give the three talks which we discussed. However, I am reluctant to suggest the winter because with Michigan and Wisconsin weather being what it is, there is a good chance that I could either not fly out of Milwaukee or get into Lansing. Hence, may I suggest between April 5 and 16 or towards the end of May.

If there is one kind of Dutch painting I really dislike it is paintings of drinking scenes, and Mr. Ishikawa must be mixing me up with somebody else. I don't recall whether you listened to my talk on "The Bible through Dutch Eyes" at the Gordon Conference, but if you did, you may recall that it was not particularly religious, although it does deal at great length with the identification of the Dutch people of the 17th century with the people of the Bible. I don't have an abstract of that talk, but the introduction which I wrote for the exhibition catalog at the Milwaukee Art Museum, enclosed, could serve as an abstract.

I do hope that when I visit with you that we could also discuss the possibility of our Library purchasing a good many of your research compounds.

If you do not mind the imposition, then I would certainly prefer to be your house guest.

Dear Dr. Taggart:

Thank you so much for your kind letter of August 14 regarding the possibility of my talking to the Philadelphia A.C.S. on "Chemistry in Art" on September 15, next year.

I would like to accept, but must tell you that I have some misgivings, for two reasons. Firstly, a good many members of your section did hear me when I spoke some years ago. Secondly, travel expenses have gotten so high and I fear that the expenses involved, $300 just for the air fare, might seem excessive.

Would it, per chance, be possible for you to suggest that I speak in Philadelphia three times on three quite different topics, and thus be able to share the expenses among various organizations.

I would be happy to talk to the graduate students of either the University of Pennsylvania or Temple University on the problems of running a chemical company such as Aldrich. Graduate students have rather little contact with people in industry, and I have found on a number of occasions that a bull session with graduate students has been appreciated by them.

Also, I would be happy to talk to art historians, perhaps at your Museum of Fine Arts, on a subject close to my heart, namely, "The Bible Through Dutch Eyes". You have one of the finest collections of Dutch paintings in the country in the Johnson Collection, and I believe that a talk to art historians and collectors of old master paintings at your museum might be appreciated.

Dear Alfred,

Ralph has expressed his fears that you will not stay in this house again due to my antipathetic behaviour towards you. I cannot ask you to understand or forgive my attitude, indeed I make no apology - it seems however such I make up my mind to put on an act of friendliness it always fails me when you walk into the house.

It might sound paradoxical, but despite this, as Ralph's friend, you are always welcome to stay here. I have no reason to believe that you are anything else but a good friend to him - he needs his friends.

There was a time when I looked forward to your visits and enjoyed the evenings the three of us spent together - I was stimulated by your mind, flattered by your attention and learnt a lot about our art from you. I don't know whether I ever thought you had a soul. You were rude to our friends if they did not fit in to your own household; you behaved disrespectfully to my mother who ultimately refused to come here if you were staying and after our children had visited you in Milwaukee.

they too would not come to the house when you were here. You must make what you will about all that.

However, those days seem long ago and how fewer cares we all had. We all had hopes still - for relative contentment, for peace - for joy from our children.

When I heard about your situation, which I found quite staggering (and bizarre),
I realised that you were eluded and could oversimplify the facts thereby convincing yourself that all was well.
The truth was that you were causing immense suffering. I find this quite unforgivable - hence, my attitude, which I wish, for Ralph's sake, I could cover up.

I will make an effort to behave in a more civil manner, but I can make no promises - alas,
I am a very poor actress.

Sincerely,

Huriet.

Dear Marice

Your letter of October 20 is the most hateful I have ever received. Let me first dispense the specifics:

I am sorry if I treated your friends rudely. With one exception I never meant to.

You say that I treated your mother disgustingly. I remember your mother as a kindly lady with whom I had little to talk about or to do. If I gazed on her in passing, why didn't you tell me? Wouldn't that have been an elementary act of friendship to me? When I dispensed your letter with Martin, I asked him whether he felt that I have ever treated his mother disgustingly and he said 'no, of course not'. Marice's mother is to me like your mother, a woman I like, but we have few things to talk about.

What you write about your daughters is much more serious. ".... they would not come to the house when you were here." Is this true? My memory isn't very good about such details, but I think each was here at least once during my last 4 or 5 visits. But if it is at least partly true, then it must be because of you. The fact is that I like them immensely. Judith is one of the most charming young women I know. No- charming is not the right word, for her is a combination of charm, true caring for others, and intelligence. Sarah is more self-effacing, almost shy, obviously a good person. Carolyn reminds me a great deal of Marice - a great doer and organizer. I like all three very much, and if you have indeed influenced them so

That is unforgivable. Of course I cannot remain as the trustee of Rita's trusts; please have that changed.

I understand better what you write about Nancy. But you must also know that you cannot know all the facts, so how can you put yourself up as judge?

Nancy and I had often discussed your behaviour towards us. Nancy felt sometimes that you treated her very kindly, at other times like a nothing. I felt the same. I also feel so ill at ease about the Communist propaganda going on in your kitchen. What would I pay in a house that had a Nazi going - and have the Russians treated our people much better than the Nazis? You probably have a clear explanation, but I felt uneasy anyway, and probably showed it. Yet, without, I respected you - you are very intelligent and you are Ralph's wife, and he obviously cares for you. I would not have thought of you, not to speak of written to you as you just did.

Why? I spent a good part of last night thinking about this after discussing it briefly with Isabel, and at length with David and Marvin.

Your immediate objectives in writing were probably to prevent my visiting your home, and to break my friendship with Ralph. You have certainly succeeded in the former, and I hope you will fail in the latter. Ralph certainly needs friends, and so do I, very much.

You may not have kept a copy of your letter, and so I am enclosing one. Read it occasionally to see of October 27 1981.

D.S. Raehl has faulted me for phoning your letter with him, Isabel, Marvin, David. Nothing in your letter suggested that you considered it confidential, and I was so flabbergasted and felt treated so cruelly, that I wanted the counsel of family and friends. I plan to place ~~to~~ ⁱⁿ my correspondence with Harry, Jane, David and others also; it would be good if you could share it with your daughter also.

For many years you felt put upon by what you considered my disgusting thoughtlessness. I never even meant to hurt you or your mother and your daughter thoughtlessly, though I fear I must have. But surely there is a fundamental difference between that, and hitting someone over the head deliberately, as you did. And have you considered how you hurt Raehl?

Dear Muriel

The enclosed may explain to you why I was so chastised by your letter of . Ralph describes me as 'enigmatic and unpredictable' but in my actions towards Ralph and you and your family I was always totally predictable. You are a well-to-do woman to-day because of Ralph and I work~~ed~~^{ed} so well together. Hence your anger strikes me as totally unbalanced.

Dear Alfred:

Thank you for your letter of October 5, which I have finally gotten around to answering, now that the lecture tour is over and my book on Fragrance Chemistry has been published.

Since the tete-beche sheets are 20th century, they fall outside of my collecting area. I agree they would be nice to have, but perhaps the way to go about this is for you to make me an offer that I could not refuse.

Do you still have all the other material? Occasionally I find people who have an interest in imperforates, especially the one item I seem to remember, an imperf. pair of the 1933 WIPA on, I believe, silk paper. If this is still for sale, please let me know the price. I have an interested collector of the WIPA material.

Dear Egbert:

Thank you so much for your kindness, expressed in our telephone conversation yesterday.

I think that your suggestion that a grant of $6000-$8000 for a year's travel would be more useful than one of $3000-$4000 is a good one, and I would like to make that amount available for 1983.

As discussed with you and Dr. Robinson, I would like the money to go to a graduate student to study Dutch paintings in Holland. Ideally, it should be a student like Mrs. Debra Miller who is studying Victors, or your student who is studying the works of Dou.

I would like to leave the decision of which student to pick jointly to you and Bill Robinson. Knowing what great human beings both of you are, I am certain that you will pick the right student.

Bill explained to me that The Fogg does not have a student for this fund this year, and so hopefully you will have one at The Institute in 1983.

Initially, we would like to do exactly what I did to help the University of Delaware student, namely, simply give Sigma-Aldrich stock to The Institute or to The Fogg, and then have the school transfer all of the funds to the student. Hopefully neither your Institute nor the Fogg will charge any overhead.

I would like to try this for a few years, and if it works out well, then I would like to donate enough capital for the interest to pay for this.

You will have realized that I was somewhat taken aback by your comment that if you and Bill pick only students who would not get a travel grant otherwise, then you would only pick from the bottom of the barrel and the result might not be very satisfactory. I was taken aback because I thought that grants these days were so hard to come by, that even some very worthy students find it difficult to get travel and study grants. In any case, I was so happy with the response from the student of Victors that I would like to try this at least for a few years, to see what happens.

I am convinced that anything you and Bill Robinson do together is bound to succeed.

Dear Dr. Bader,

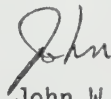

I wonder if it will be possible in the course of this letter to say "thank you" enough times for the help you have given me. My trip to Stanford was wonderful. I enjoyed talking science with each and every faculty member. Evidently the feelings were mutual as I received a job offer for assistant professor. As of March 18, 1983 I have accepted the offer. I will begin work September 1.

All of us at times may reflect as to those forces which have had a major impact on our lives. For me this is a particularly easy task. During my tenure at MIT and Harvard I became increasingly disillusioned by the many scientists I encountered who lacked any measure of compassion or understanding of anything outside their own petty little fiefdoms. Fortunately for me, you walked into my lab.

Your attitude towards science has been an inspiration. Chemistry is as much an art form as that beautiful print you gave me. If I accomplish only one thing in my professional life it will be to instill the beauty and excitement of this medium in my students.

Enclosed is a brief outline of my proposals concerning 5-thio-D-glucose. I have become exceedingly interested in the area and would like to examine the various enzyme catalyzed processes. As Sigma/Aldrich markets the starting material and most of the enzymes, it is an ideal project for starting a research group.

Sincerely,

John W. Frost

My dear Alfred and "Mrs. Alfred,"

Your very lovely and gracious letter was most welcome - and couldn't have come at a better time... it brought back a million warm memories I had not dwelled on for so very long a time. It is a great pity I did not realize how difficult that time was.... I sensed but did not know until now your state of mind.

It's true, Houston is still very hot and humid, especially in the summer months... but my wife, Dorothy was born here and when the separatist movement became violent it was necessary to come back here - she is happy again, particularly since our son Paul and his family & our daughter SarahAnn have also moved here... leaving an older son John & his family in Montreal.

I deeply appreciate your kind invitation - and will give further careful thought to your observation that Milwaukee and Houston are equidistant (I was always better in Art's New Service)... and will very eagerly look forward to the day when we and our wives can meet.... I will be 67 on my next birthday - and altho still pretty active must make concessions.... whereas, by your picture... which ~~it~~ ^{I see} reflect the eagerness, alertness and sensitivity I first saw so long ago.

Incidentally... I have family - for many many years in Kirkland Lake - Ruben, Joe and Louis Scott - I understand they were well known & some live there at present.

I must add too that the very first money I earned went to establish a memorial fund at Queen's in the name of my parents.... and I will try to add to it...

I am very proud of your hard-won accomplishments... your awareness is for me a true blessing - and I thank you for making the effort.

affectionately,

Bru Scott.

Dear Dr. Sauer,

I received a copy of the Aldrichimica Acta article entitled "Our Chemist-Collector Approaches Sixty" from my daughter in Houston who remembered my mentioning your name and the thrill of handling a part of your collection. I visited you and your family in Milwaukee in the late 1960's to prepare for hanging an exhibition in the Dow Memorial Library in Midland, Michigan.

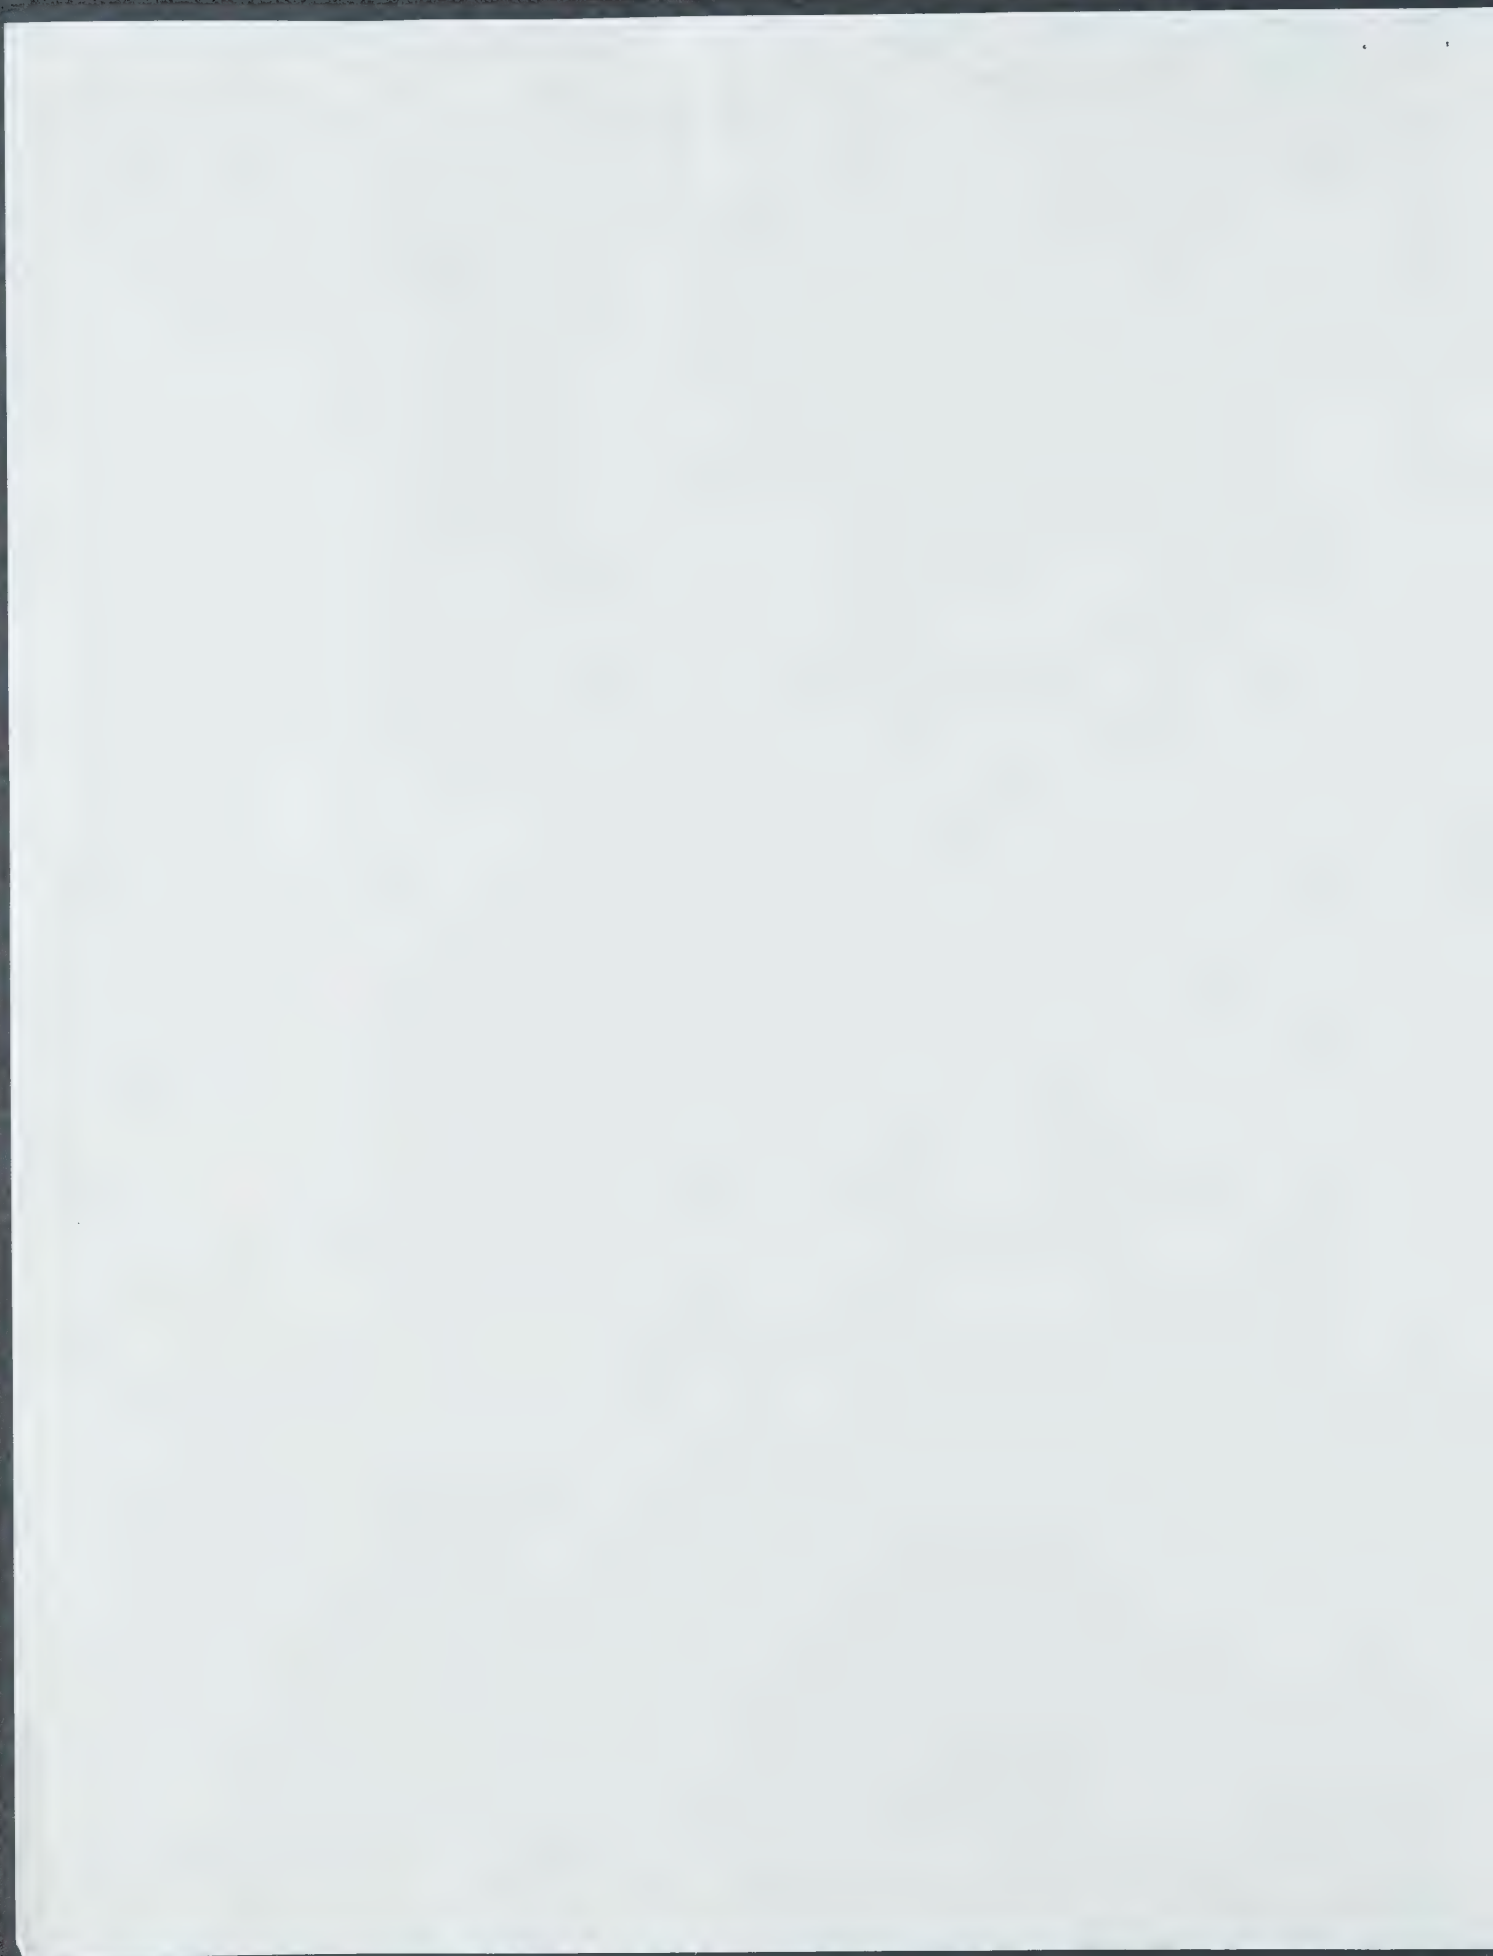

As a part-time instructor at Indiana University Southeast I teach Art Appreciation classes. I try to give a sense of the thought patterns of both artists and collectors/patrons and have used my memories of our association in class. I think that it was you who gave me my first true understanding of collecting because one loves the work and not exclusively because the piece is valuable. And your matter-of-factness about the activity of your young sons who were running close to some paintings that were leaning against the wall, deeply impressed me.

How unusual life seems to be sometimes - that at the very time I was preparing my lesson plans and remembering our association - this article should appear in a magazine delivered to the University of Texas biochemistry department.

Thank you for being part of a long line of art lovers who have inspired and instructed me. And - belated happy birthday!

Sincerely,

Your letter of August 24 was truly heart-warming.

The exhibition at Dow was the first of many exhibitions of my collection, and in a way the most fun. I still remember the great excitement of packing the paintings in a truck and then taking a ferry and driving with my young boys to Midland.

You probably remember Mary and Stan Klesney, our old friends at Dow; I just wish we had more such friends around the world.

Thank you so much for your kind invitation of August 13 to serve on the Board of the National Institute for Chemical Education.

One important function of that Board will be in fund-raising. Several times in the past I have tried to become involved in the fund-raising for organizations about which I feel very strongly and have then become so involved in and very disappointed when people of substantial means were much less generous than I had hoped that they would be. I just find it so much easier to give myself than to persuade others, and I have simply come to realize that I am no good at all at fund-raising.

Hence, I hope that you will understand my declining to serve on this Board. Many thanks for your thoughtfulness.

Sept. 25, 1987

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Bader,

Here's that article on your visit to Grinnell College. The editors made some slight changes, so tel' me if anything's wrong with it.

I do hope the article reflects the pleasure I received from your visit. I doubt I could ever get to Milwaukee, but I hope that your life there continues to be everything it should ~~be~~. When I met you, I mentioned my own small discovery. Should you want to look at the catalogue, it will be in a sale at Christie's on, I think, 16 October. I have not yet seen the catalogue, but Dad says my portrait (attrib. to Nicolas Mignard) is one of the more handsome pieces. I'm sure I could do better by it, but I don't feel much like sending it to IFAR, for reasons you can perhaps imagine.

At Grinnell, there is a great lack of support for the arts, especially the visual arts and music. Very fine people, such as the woman who handles the Print Study Room, are engaged in a difficult battle to encourage scholarly collecting and exhibits. But Grinnell is an ambitious institution. I hope you will share my optimism in believing that facilities will much improve. Someday I hope to help the college art collection. But in the much nearer present and for the less distant future, I hope that such facilities will be in place to greet you should you again visit the college.

Sincerely,

Danforth Lecturer Recounts Trials and Joys of Art Collecting

by Vincent Prosser

Anyone who missed the appearances of this year's Danforth Lecturer on the 17th and 18th of September missed an event of major importance. Although I am not competent to judge Alfred Bader's importance as a chemist and businessman, his importance as an art collector is unquestioned. He has appeared in more than one national-magazine listing of "America's 100 Most Important Collectors." When this was mentioned, his wife Isabel shrugged. That is understandable. There is, after all, a certain futility to such lists.

In his speeches, Mr. Bader characterized his collecting urge as a sort of "disease." But Mr. Bader's humorous view of himself was shared quite seriously during his childhood by those close to him. When Mr. Bader was a child, an uncle of his gave him money with which to buy a box camera. Being feckless and irresponsible, the young Mr. Bader took the gift-money and bought instead an old drawing for sale in Vienna. Today, perhaps, many would consider this a sign of precocity or great sensitivity. But Mr. Bader's uncle thought the action very strange. Young Alfred must be, well, touched in the head, deserving psychological attention. Mr. Bader's concerned mother, observing such unusual habits as well as a certain lack of skill in school mathematics, did indeed take the uncle's advice. The doctor's considered opinion (no doubt after months of Freudian analysis) was that there was no cure for young Alfred. That was just the way he was and ever would be. Both Mr. Bader and those who have since come into contact with him have benefited from the doctor's understanding.

Mr. Bader himself has an understanding of and an affection for others, witnessed by his friendly and compassionate wit. This personal characteristic, a unique view of others, an independent or original way of dealing with others, is reflected in his collection habits. As important as the find itself is the thrill of the chase. Buying at auction or private sale, Mr. Bader acquires approximately 200 paintings a year. Do not be mistaken and think that each painting carries a "fine art" price-tag.

Not at all. Mr. Bader has bought paintings at junk stores, small antique stores, and the like. But what each painting does share is that hint of quality. Mr. Bader is never more pleased than when he can take a misattributed, dirty, perhaps slightly damaged painting and save it for posterity through restoration and a recognition of its true worth. Having begun his career as a paint chemist, Mr. Bader believes that he can recognize an old painting merely by its painted surface or "film" (including such considerations as varnish, etc.).

Many of his finds are possible only for one who has a good eye, who can clearly remember particular painters' stylistic quirks — their ways of handling paint, the revealing and individual manner in which a painter handles hands or draperies, for instance.

At one small European shop, Mr. Bader asked the proprietor if he had any paintings. "Paintings? My house is full of them!" the man replied. It was all too true; and most of them Victorian monstrosities but for one, which the man had given to his new wife as a wedding present. Despite Mr. Bader's offer of 100 pounds for it, she refused to sell it until her husband pointed out that the money could be used to buy the new sink for which she was pining. Thus was the deal clinched. The painting? A still-life by Pieter Claesz.

This amusing anecdote, one among many, reveals very well that some of the people for whom he has been a client neither possess, nor would probably want to possess Mr. Bader's remarkable appreciation for paintings, as they have other concerns. The loss is theirs; for Mr. Bader, and others like him, is one who improves life, preserving and celebrating those works of artistic genius that, contemplated, restore our sanity and our equilibrium, instructing us and changing us in subtle ways. His collection and his articles in well-respected journals, such as the Burlington Magazine, represent an important legacy of art and knowledge.

The Ultimate Sport

"What happened to the field?" was the cry that filled the air as the I.M. ultimate Frisbee season threw off. "It's only about half the size of last year." Now you can throw a scoring pass from anywhere on the field. After the first week, Off-Campus, the defending ultimate Frisbee champ, is off to a fast start as it is undefeated in its first four games. However, it could get a strong challenge from Langan, the only other undefeated team at 5-0. Other teams doing well include Cleveland and Haines with identical 3-1 records. Interestingly enough, the defending overall I.M. champ, Read, is off to a slow start as it is winless in its first three games. Here are the complete standings through Monday, September 22.

"Just Say No" division
1 Langan	5-0
2 Off-Campus	4-0
3 Cleveland	3-1
4 Smith	2-2
5 Cowles/Dibble	1-3
6 Rawson/Gates	1-4

"Corked Bar" division

Dear Dr. Bader,

Public recognition of your years of service to our religious school has been too long in coming. Even today students returning for visits remember, with respect and fondness, your having changed their lives.

You taught them Bible to be sure; you also taught them to think, to appreciate history, to consider the aesthetic and ethical value of heroism and to discipline themselves in the search for Scripture's counsel. I can't count the times your students, now adults with their own families, have reported that Dr. Bader and Jewish education were synonymous.

It was Henry David Thoreau, I believe, who said that a teacher's influence is eternal.

Hearty congratulations.
